

Expect to Arrest Woman 'Prominent' In Hall-Mills Case

Alleged Eye-Witness Signs Statement Giving Name of Woman in Slaying Party.

SPECIAL PROSECUTOR RETICENT, HOWEVER

Woman Named Has Been Prominent Figure in Case Since the Probe Began.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
New Brunswick, N. J., October 25. Mrs. Jane Gibson, alleged eye-witness of the Hall-Mills murder, signed a statement today giving the name of a woman who, she declared, was one of the slaying party, and reports immediately were circulated that the arrest of the woman—prominent since the start among those under investigation—was imminent.

Wilbur A. Mott, special prosecutor in charge of the case, was quoted to the effect that there might be an arrest within an hour. But tonight Mr. Mott added to his quoted utterance a phrase which he says he used in the first instance—"or in two weeks."

He intimated although he could not say definitely that no arrest would be made until the case had been laid before the Somerset county grand jury and an indictment—or indictments—returned. He declined to say when he would go before that body.

Ready to Act.
While it was true, Mr. Mott said, that Mrs. Gibson, farmer and pig-raiser, had signed a statement today, that document did not contain anything she had not already told the authorities and he could see no need at present for an immediate arrest. He declared, however, that he was ready to order one or several arrests without waiting for grand jury action if circumstances made haste advisable.

Mr. Mott expressed skepticism as to Mrs. Gibson's identification in her statement of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall—victim with Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, of the slaying party—because that identification was made on the strength of a photograph. Mrs. Gibson never had seen the rector before the night of the shooting, he said.

Refuses to Answer.
Asked whether Mrs. Gibson ever before had seen the woman she identified as being present at the shooting and who, she declared, had screamed the name of a man long under suspicion, he declined to answer.

As soon as Mrs. Gibson's statement had been obtained, Detective Mason took it to Mr. Mott at Newark, while Colonel Schwarz Kopf, head of the state police, started about the same time for the Manhattan police headquarters. What his mission was could not be learned. It was recalled, however, that the theory had been advanced that persons who had reasons to be jealous of the relations of the minister and Mrs. Hall had hired the gunmen to do the actual slaying.

M'ADOO CANCELS SPEAKING DATES ACCOUNT ILLNESS

Dodge City, Kans., October 25.—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, was unable to deliver his scheduled address here today because of illness. Mr. McAdoo's address at Syracuse, Kans., this afternoon and Denver tonight also were cancelled, upon the advice of his physician, who ordered complete rest.

The former secretary of the treasury became suddenly ill last night after leaving Wichita. Mr. McAdoo will not make another address in the interest of the democratic campaign until he reaches Salt Lake City, and then only with the consent of his physician, he said today.

Mr. McAdoo seemed somewhat improved when his train reached here and he continued his journey to Salt Lake via Denver. His illness was caused by a stomach disorder.

This Family Boasts 13 Children Under 5; Hard on Railroads

Laporte, Ind., October 25.—Three sets of triplets and two sets of twins, all boys, are offered as evidence by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott that theirs is a record family. The Scotts, with their thirteen children, boarded a train today for the west in search of a new home.

When the mother proffered one ticket for herself, as the children all are under five years old, the conductor remarked: "We can't carry a Sunday school class, madam."

"But they are my children," Mrs. Scott replied.

Then the family Bible was produced and it showed that Ashbel, Archer and Austin each was four and one-half years old; Arthur and Arnold, three and one-half each; Allen, Almon and Abdon, two and one-half; Alfred, Albert and Adolph, 18 months; and Abel and Abner, six months.

Asks Officers To Protect Him From Son of 14

Youth Says He Drove Father From Home to Protect Mother.

Dublin, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—Following a telephone call from the home of J. I. Dixon, of near his city, Monday night sheriff's officers rushed out to find that Mr. Dixon had called for help in subduing his 14-year-old son, who had chased his father away from home.

The father came from his place of hiding told officers that his young son had forced him to leave the house in fear of death. The youth told the officers that his father had been mean to his mother for several years and that he had started in to "straighten out matters."

McGedigan Is Charged With Swindling Aged Man by Representing Himself as Mason.

At the end of a chase which wound through England and France and back to America, McGedigan, alias "the Square-Faced Kid," was arrested in New York on October 21 and is being held without bond for Atlanta authorities for alleged participation in the Floyd Woodward-bunco operations exposed here by Solicitor John A. Boykin in 1920, it was learned Wednesday.

McGedigan, who is said to have operated here as John Gray, is wanted on charge of swindling R. W. Hill, 80-year-old Confederate veteran of Hahersham county, out of his life savings, namely, $3,500 in cash, in a fake stock exchange transaction, it is said.

Identify of the prisoner having been definitely established, Solicitor Boykin wired New York authorities Wednesday to release him on bond.

Posed as Mason.
Masons in every section of the United States will herald his arrest with much satisfaction, it is stated, it being claimed that the alleged bunco man used certain Masonic secrets to

THREE DEFENDANTS FOUND NOT GUILTY IN ACTOR'S DEATH

Jury Clears Cline, Scullion and Miss Thornton of Murder of John Bergin.

Hackensack, N. J., October 25.—A 25-year-old stenographer, forewoman of a murder jury, rose in the jury box Wednesday and pronounced a verdict of "not guilty," freeing three persons of charges of guilt in the sensational slaying of John Bergin, daredevil motion picture actor, last August.

The forewoman was Mrs. Susan A. Squire. She stood in front of the court clerk, who asked:

"Have you reached a verdict?"

"Yes," she replied. "Not guilty."

The jury had been out two hours and forty minutes and its verdict freed George Cline, motion picture director, accused of the direct slaying of Bergin, Charles Scullion, his brother-in-law, and Miss Alice Thornton, erstwhile friend of Bergin and charged with luring him to death in the Edgewater, N. J., home of Cline.

Bergin had been summoned to the Cline home to be confronted with accusations of improper relations with Mrs. Cline. He admitted the truth of the charges, and, according to the story told by Cline, was invited to an upstairs room to fight the matter out in a "duel." Bergin is said to have grasped Cline's revolver and was shot and killed in the scuffle.

SOLDIER STABBED AND NEAR DEATH

F. G. Quinn Tells Ambulance Driver That Another Soldier Cut Him After Quarrel Over Girl.

F. G. Quinn, Buffalo, S. C., a soldier stationed at Fort McPherson, probably was fatally stabbed Wednesday night during a fight at Ellis and Ivy streets. Doctors at Grady hospital say there is but slight hope for the man's recovery.

Quinn it is said told the ambulance driver on his way to the hospital that a Fort McPherson soldier named J. O. Brown cut him following a fight over a girl. Brown he said escaped in an automobile prior to the arrival of the police.

The injured man's story is discredited by the detectives working on the case it was stated at police headquarters. The authorities asserted that the fight followed a row over the purchase of some whiskey.

Quinn's injuries consist of a long slash in the abdomen, which severed several arteries. He lapsed into unconsciousness following his statement to the ambulance driver. The army authorities have been notified.

JUSTICE OF PEACE ENFORCES RULING WITH OWN FISTS

Los Angeles, October 25.—J. Walter Hanby, justice of peace, yesterday enforced a court order against Robert M. Kitterman with two sharp lefts to the chin and a right to the defendant's middle.

Kitterman had objected to a court ruling in his case and was said to have shouted:

"To hell with this court. I am going back to Illinois where they won't treat me that way."

Justice Hanby assessed a fine of $10 for contempt of court. Kitterman paid, and later was said to have applied "an opprobrious epithet" to the court. For the latter alleged offense the court demanded an apology. Kitterman refused to make it whereupon the justice of peace enforced "the order with his fists."

Payment of the fine and a napology were made forthwith.

"I'll show the fools who is boss," said Voliva Tuesday night.

Find Nude Body Of Slain Woman Buried in Marsh

Husband Identifies Body Found in Shallow Grave, Shot and Clubbed.

Cleveland, Ohio, October 25.—The body of Mrs. Henry J. Burns, 35, of this city, partially clothed, was unearthed from a newly dug grave, covered with dead leaves, in a woods northwest of Painesville late today.

Discovery of the grave was made by two Cleveland dentists, Dr. D. C. Connell and Dr. W. R. Beattie, who were hunting chestnuts when they came across a hat with blood on it. They notified official Painesville who dug up the body.

Identification was made by Mrs. Burns' husband here after he had seen a necklace, wrist watch and keys found on the body of the murdered woman. "Why they belong to my wife," he told officers. He was then told of the murder.

Shortly after the two dentists had discovered the bloody clothing they saw a man with a basket hurrying through the woods. They called to him, police said, but he refused to stop. The two men, however, ran to the road past the woods and saw the license number of the machine in which he drove away. Detectives here were at once given this and tracing it to the west side of the city took the driver to police headquarters for questioning. He denied any knowledge of the murder.

Examination of the body showed that Mrs. Burns had been shot through the left eye. The back of her head was crushed, while her face was marred by long scars and scratches. No other wounds were on the body. Her wrist watch had stopped at three minutes past 12 o'clock and deputy sheriffs believe that was the time when the murder was committed. They are of the opinion that the murderer left the victim in the woods last night and completed the burial this morning.

"Hammer Murder" Testimony Begun For Prosecution

Former Chorus Girl Unmoved as Grosseome Details of Crime Unfold.

Los Angeles, October 25.—The finding of the body of Mrs. Albert Meadows and details of its mutilated condition as shown by photographs were put before the jury today as the first testimony of the prosecution in the trial of Mrs. Clara Phillips, former chorus girl and defendant in what is known as the "hammer murder case."

Without emotion Mrs. Phillips sat beside her attorney, listened to descriptions of the results of a beating administered to Mrs. Meadows that caused death, and even took a calm, though quick glance at pictures of the slain woman's body.

Fred A. Tremaine, father of Mrs. Meadows, was the first witness. He told the jury that she was 20 years of age and had been a widow six months prior to her death July 12. He identified pictures of his daughter taken both during her lifetime and as he saw her in the morgue. On cross-examination he said she had lived alone since last June.

Tells of Finding Body.
Mrs. Fred Weitz told of finding the body of Mrs. Meadows July 12 while driving on a mountain road at the edge of the city. She identified pictures of the body. Over objection of the defense the pictures were introduced in evidence and shown to the jury.

Police officers recited their finding of the mutilated body. They identified a blood-stained hat as having been found nearby. Further investigation, they said, disclosed a blood-stained hammer handle, a piece of brown wrapping paper, a string and a flask containing a small quantity of intoxicating liquor.

One Eye-Witness.
The hammer with which Mrs. Phillips is charged with having beaten Mrs. Meadows to death was purchased by her the day before and carried to the scene just as it was wrapped and tied in the package according to Mrs. Peggie, another former chorus girl, and only known eye-witness to the slaying.

F. L. James, a detective sergeant, drove with the body at Montecito to the court and was sworn in as a juror. He will complete his testimony tomorrow.

Croix de Guerre Returned to France For Turk Policy

Pittsburg, October 25.—Christ A. Meletis, of Pittsburg, who served in France with the Twenty-eighth division and was wounded six times, today returned to President Miller, of France, the croix de guerre and citation which had been conferred upon him by the French government.

"A good bit of me is left in France, but the wounds I received from the enemy were nothing in comparison to the wounds received when I learned that France was helping the Turk," said Meletis, who accompanied the decorations. "I am doing this to express to you and your government my personal disapproval of the policy of France in the Near East."

Meletis is also president of the Greek-American world war veterans, recently organized here.

Josephus Daniels Denies Inference In Lane Letters

Secretary Says Letter Gives Wrong Impression of "Convoy" Debate.

Washington, October 25.—Declaring a "wholly wrong impression" of important historical facts had been given in one of the recently published letters of Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior under President Wilson, Josephus Daniels, who sat in the Wilson cabinet as secretary of the navy, telegraphed the Associated Press tonight a story of the events which he said had led up to the adoption of the convoy system of protecting American ships early in 1917.

Mr. Daniels' message, sent from High Point, N. C., made particular reference to a statement in one of the Lane letters saying that "that it would be dangerous."

The letter also attributed to President Wilson a suggestion that "this country was not willing that we should take any risks of war."

"Fortunately, I kept a diary in those days," said Mr. Daniels' telegram. "Here is exactly what happened at that cabinet meeting in February before we had entered the war—President Wilson turned to me and asked, 'Daniels, why have the British not convoyed their ships?'"

Word "Dangerous."
"In reply I informed him that the policy of the British admiralty was against the convoy formation, and that they regarded it more dangerous

Declares Britain and America, Working Together, Would Assure Just and Lasting Peace.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
London, October 25.—Former Prime Minister Lloyd George started off his campaign in London today with a fighting speech to an enthusiastic meeting of the coalition liberal members of parliament, throwing down the gauntlet to the conservatives whose attack upon the late government he declared left no alternative but to "spread the war."

The little Welshman stood by his Manchester speech of October 14, reiterating his intention to support any party or government pursuing a policy of peace, economy and steady progress, neither revolutionary nor reactionary.

"We are confronted," said Mr. Lloyd George, "with a very important decision affecting not merely the future of those here and those who support them in the country, but a decision which affects the interests of the country itself. That is a more important matter for us all."

Chapter Closed.
"One chapter in the history of the politics of this country is for the moment closed. A new one is opened. What is printed on that page will depend largely on the attitude we adopt." He counselled calmness and courage, and asserted the interests of the country must come first.

"I have seen parties destroyed by personal resentments," continued the former premier. "I have seen parties rendered impotent by personal resentments. I have seen their judgment deflected, and for that reason they are not making the contribution they ought to the well being of the people."

CURZON WANTS U. S. AT TURK PARLEY

Note Sent France Suggesting Invitation to America to Join Lausanne Conference.

London, October 25.—Lord Curzon, the British foreign minister, has sent a note to France suggesting that the United States be invited to participate in the Near East peace conference, beginning November 13. Curzon explained that since the United States helped arrange the terms of the Sevres treaty which is to be rewritten at the forthcoming conference, it would only be natural for America to participate not merely as an observer, but actively.

However, until a definite invitation either from France or Great Britain or both, is received by the state department, no official reaction from the administration may be expected.

While it has been intimated that the United States might have an official observer at such a peace conference, at the same time, the attitude of this government during the Near East crisis was one of neutrality, and for this reason alone, it might be considered advisable to decline the invitation. Nevertheless, the sentiments of this government as recently expressed by Secretary Hughes, to the effect that racial and religious minorities in the Near East should be protected, might indicate a willingness to participate in a conference which would endeavor to achieve these ends.

At the same time, the administration has kept aloof from any participation in European affairs because the time for "helpfulness" has not been regarded as ripe. If the Near East peace conference invitation is received, undoubtedly, it was said, the question of the opportunities of American participation would be one of the first to be considered.

Memphis, Tenn.—I think St. Joseph's G. F. P. is all it is recommended to be, and advise all sick women to take it as a general tonic, as well as for female organs. I want every sick woman to just take a trial and really believe that several bottles of this great female remedy will cure any female irregularities. You may use this as you wish.—Mrs. J. B. # BRITAINS BLAMED FOR FRANC SLUMP

Paris, October 25.—The buying of dollars by British banks with French francs in their possession is said by French financiers to be the principal cause of the present weakness of the franc. The dollars were used by the British to pay the interest on their war debt to the United States.

Bankers and the financial authorities of the government appear undisturbed by the rise of the dollar and the pound.

"It is rarely possible to put one's finger on the actual circumstances affecting exchange," said a high official of the Ministry of Finance to the Associated Press today. Then, attempting to express himself by using an American colloquialism, he said: "But the time we can locate the 'cold' of the franc is in the wood-pile."

"The British banks and the British treasury, which have long been accumulating French francs, have used them as was their right to do, to buy dollars they needed instead of using pounds," he continued. "The consequence was that the payment of the big sum of interest to the United States had no bad effect on the pound. On the contrary, British exchange profited by the subsequent depreciation of the franc."

The British banks, having disposed of their francs, cannot repeat such an operation easily again, it was pointed out. There are other factors in the situation which also are regarded as temporary, such as the large purchases of wool and cotton in the United States by French manufacturers.

"They are not alone temporary but they are immensely encouraging," said the head of the economic research department of a leading French bank. "They show signs of revival of French industry. The importations of such raw material means the exportation of the manufactured product."

It has been reported in France recently that this country had bought large quantities of copper in the United States. While the copper came from the United States, it was the property of Germans who had contracted for 120,000,000 pounds on a credit operation. The value of such a large quantity at the present rate of exchange is said to be worth more than 100,000,000 paper marks.

The French iron and steel industry, according to information gathered by this research head, now is the slowest of all French industries but is showing signs of a rapid recovery.

"Speculation has had little to do with the present movement," said an important banker, and later was a simple following of the movement.

Mr. Cholmeley-Jones was born in England and before coming to this country was well-known in London musical circles. At one time he was bass soloist and organist of Trinity church, New York, and later was a musical and dramatic writer on the New York Herald. He was identified in various capacities with Philadelphia theatrical interests for thirty years.

BILL PAYNE BEGINS TERM IN CHAINGANG

W. L. ("Bill") Payne, former detective convicted for accepting bribes from Nat McWhorter, confessed bootlegger, began his sentence of one year on the chaingang Wednesday, every appeal having been denied. His conviction resulted from the bunco investigation.

The former officer surrendered to Sheriff Lowry before noon. In addition to the chaingang sentence he was fined $1,000 and given a six months' jail sentence following his conviction. That is the maximum misdemeanor sentence.

McWhorter was the principal witness against the officer. In corroboration of the negro's claim that he had paid Payne sums for protection in the whisky business the state offered Payne's bank account records which showed large deposits covering a long period.

The dates of the deposits tallied so closely with the dates on which McWhorter claims to have paid him money that the state's statement was accepted by a jury. There was other substantiating evidence.

Payne appealed his case to the court of appeals and the supreme court, but the verdict of the Fulton superior court was sustained.

Payne has stoutly maintained his innocence, asserting that his conviction was a "frame-up," prompted by political motives.

CAPTURE ALLEGED BUNCO OPERATOR

He is said to be wanted for similar operations in Oklahoma and Florida.

The Georgia victim, Hill, had, perhaps, the most pathetic story to tell of all the victims of the so-called Floyd Woodward gang of wiretappers. On the stand at the famous bunco probe at the city hall he told of losing the savings of a lifetime. He said his wife is 80 years old, and he had gone without necessities to have living expenses in their last days.

McClellan's looks earned him the sobriquet of "The Square-Faced Kid" when he first became acquainted with the police of California, his native state, several years ago, it is said. "Square" was used in its physical sense, not in the slang meaning of "square" dealing with one's fellows. In fact, he dealt with them in such a way at times that he found it convenient to dispense with his real name and masquerade as James Strong, Joseph Gray, Dock Gray, Blondy Joyce and Dr. Gray, it is claimed.

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES ARMY BLIMP WHEN BAG TEARS

Newport News, Va., October 25.—Destruction of the army dirigible C-14 was prevented today. In the opinion of officers at Langley field, by the presence of mind of a member of the crew when a hole was torn in the blimp's gas bag as it was being taken from its hangar.

When hydrogen began to hiss from the bag, those nearby hurried for safety, except one man who pulled the rip cord, releasing the gas.

Officers who witnessed the accident declared that if this had not been done the dirigible probably would have met a fate similar to that of its sister ship, the C-2, recently at San Antonio.

The bag of the C-14, according to officers in charge, will have to be rebuilt. The name of the member of the crew who is believed to have saved the dirigible from total destruction was not made public.

Best Dressed Man On Corner Likely To Be Bootlegger

St. Paul Minn., October 25.—If you're looking for a boot legger, pick out the best dressed fellow on the next corner. Mr. Volstead's act has changed the purveyor of booze from a white-shirted, white-aproned individual into a Beau Brummel. A round-up of bootleggers in the twin cities which brought more than 100 of them to jail, partially showed why business is good in the clothing line.

"They're a fine looking, well-dressed bunch of fellows," said Sheriff Wagner, whose reception rooms at the Ramsey county jail were filled to overflowing by Judge Page Morris, who also jammed the Hennepin county jail across the River, sent the surplus to adjoining counties, and has started a canvass of the state to find jails that could hold more.

"No longer does the bartender swing a squishy towel and shout: 'what'll you have?' He asks a friendly eye upon the thirsty looking individual and coos: 'I know where you can get it.'"

"Because he's well dressed and prosperous looking, he's seldom suspected."

CAR'S REAR WHEELS SHORN OF TIRES

E. O. Kellum, 98 Forrest avenue, parked his car at Ellis and Ivy streets Wednesday night. When he returned in an hour or so, the two rear tires were gone, and the extra on the spare rim showed evidences of a determined effort to remove it.

He told the police the thieves had borrowed his jack to raise the car, but were thoughtful enough to return it to its place under the rear seat after they were through with it.

DANIELS DENIES LANE INFERENCE

In U-boats goes to sail in company under convoy than for each merchant ship to go on its own. I added that some of our naval officers of high rank held this same view. That was the only use I made of the word "dangerous."

"The president replied that he believed the British admiralty was wrong and these American naval officers who agreed with them were also wrong, and that the British ought long ago to have conveyed their ships."

A few weeks later, I think it was the last day of March, 1917, or about that date, when before the United States entered the war, in giving Admiral Sims instructions I told him that President Wilson had long believed that the allies ought to use the convoy and did not agree with our own naval officers who took the same position that the British admiralty and the other allies had practiced. Shortly after his arrival in London Admiral Sims presented President Wilson's views on the convoy to Admiral Jellicoe and a short time thereafter the convoy system was put in practice with good results.

Praises Navy. "Our navy placed guns on merchant ships before the United States entered the war. The navy also furnished a gunner's crew for such ships. It was dangerous and the hardest sort of service. Neither before the war was declared nor during the war did I hesitate to adopt that named Gibraltar, and it conveyed the danger that promised protection and the story of how the navy dared perils and danger proves this statement."

"The American navy furnished the larger part of the convoy that protected the larger amount of shipping that carried our policy no matter how dangerous that promised protection and the story of how the navy dared perils and danger proves this statement."

they go on their honeymoon alone. "As a result I gave the maid a vacation," the singer said. "Perhaps I did ask him to look up my dress occasionally. I never tried to humiliate him at any time, but sought always to make him a man of whom all men would be proud."

Opened Letter. Her deposition today following a ruling by the superior court denying the petition of her counsel to have Glotzbach's divorce action thrown out of court, Judge Frank Murasky extended until November 14 the time in which her counsel may reply to Glotzbach's complaint or file a demurrer. The divorce trial itself will be two months or more in the future, attorneys in the case said.

In January of this year, when they were together again, her deposition continued, she taxed him with being interested in another woman and finally threatened to open the next letter he received. On carrying out her threat, the singer said, her eyes fell on a letter addressed to Glotzbach and signed by Lottie Frates, which referred to the writer's physical condition.

After she read it, the singer said,

NATION COMES FIRST, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

for whose prosperity we are deeply concerned. We will not make that mistake, whatever happens. We will consider the land to which we are deeply attached first. Its interests must be deepest in our hearts; its interests must be highest in our concern, Great Britain first; any party, even our own, second and even last.

"Now, that is our policy. We have stood for national unity, that is, unity of all men, all creeds, parties and sections for the purpose, first of all, of winning the war, and afterwards, of relieving the country from its after the war difficulties."

Party Faction Rises

It was not their fault, declared Mr. Lloyd George to his hearers, if a party faction had arisen and unity had been for the moment broken. The war had been won and the country was getting through its troubles in peace gradually, and throughout the world re-establishment and successful grappling with financial difficulties was being accomplished.

"Our credit was being built up in a way that amazed the whole world," continued he. "Trade was beginning to turn, unemployment was going down, in fact, success was becoming so manifest that some people thought it time to seize the profits." Faction had been revived, and the success of the coalition had made some of the ablest, most experienced and most honorable men in the conservative party say: "This isn't Jannock" (provincial English for "fair play").

"I can understand," he said, "a revolt of under-secretaries. I can also understand, for the reasons indicated, why the wiser heads of the party did not join in the revolt."

Future Difficult. "The present may look prosperous or promising. The future is dark and difficult, and the wiser men hesitated, were reluctant, apart from the fact that, as Lord Balfour said, there are certain things gentlemen don't do."

"But what I can not understand is why the majority party took that line," said the former premier, laying emphasis upon these words. "It is vital that we should not allow our view of the eastern transactions to weigh against the country's interests. This is the thing that matters at the beginning, at the end, and all the time."

He expressed doubt as to whether the conservatives alone could defend the fabric, the institutions and the principles of the country for which millions had paid death.

Reasons Perplex. "We are here," he declared, "to see how the situation which has been brought about by indiscipline, impulsive thoughtless men shall be handled."

He said that Great Britain shall not come to any harm by their deeds."

Mr. Lloyd George said he was unable to explain the reasons for the breakdown—that he was perplexed when he tried to find what the differences were.

"They are not to be found in the discussions of the cabinet," he said, "and I have looked at the speeches delivered as an indication of the policy of the new government, and I am still more perplexed."

He thought it hardly worth while breaking up the great national combination that had achieved so much in war and peace in order merely to substitute Lord Salisbury for Lord Balfour as lord president of the council.

Home Conditions Tranquil. Mr. Lloyd George asserted that conditions here were tranquil and that he had seen conditions abroad worse than now.

The ex-premier credited the coalition with settling the trouble between Turkey and Greece "by strong and firm action, which showed Great Britain meant to have peace on terms honorable to our country and which would be one of security for the world."

To have peace, he said, one must be strong. Great Britain was not going to extend her responsibilities "but she must not be afraid of her responsibilities. A Britain that goes to the councils of the world afraid of her responsibilities is a Britain that will cease to count from that moment."

He said that in order to follow the traditional policy of the country "we must stand for moderation in the treatment of foreign affairs and work with our allies to the best of our power, but not abandon the great British policy for which this country has always stood. We must not be tied behind the chariot of any other land."

On Reparations. On the question of reparations Lloyd George said there should be no attempt to impose on Germany any payment beyond her capacity. "And what is within her capacity," he added, "she should pay."

"I do not stand for a policy that would say Great Britain must pay America all her debt, but that she must exact nothing from Germany, from France, or from anybody else. I am for fair play but we must have it for our own citizens, too."

Lloyd George said he had never changed his mind regarding the league of nations and the best of no other two countries do. If these two countries would work together, it would be a most sure guaranty for the just peace which is the only lasting peace."

The remainder of the former premier's speech dealt with some policies. In it, Lloyd George after tilting at Reginald McKenna for changing his allegiance from Asquith to Bonar Law, advocated improvement in trade and increase in employment, urged economy and asserted that capital and labor must work together. Regarding the attitude to be adopted toward the coming elections, Lloyd George said:

"Labor has declared ruthless war upon us. In self-defense, therefore, you have to fight and resist the onslaughts of the socialist party of this country."

PRESS PASSAGE OF FARMER BILLS

mittie, which provides that banks having 60 per cent of the required capital stock may become members of the federal reserve system, provided they increase annually their capital stock amounting to 20 per cent of net earnings until the present requirement as to capital stock is met. This measure has already been passed by the senate.

Sixth, amendment of the statutes so as to adapt the tax on national banks to existing state taxation systems, and at the same time protect them against unjust discriminations in favor of state banks or trust companies doing the same business.

Seventh, passage of what are known as the "truth-in-fabric-bills," now pending, which provide that manufacturers of woolen goods mark them so as to indicate on their label their true content of material, in order that purchasers may not be deceived.

Standardized Containers. Eighth, enactment of a measure already passed by the house standardizing containers for fruits and vegetables.

Ninth, enactment of a bill, likewise passed by the house, seeking to protect public health by prohibiting the manufacture of filled condensed milk made by removing the butter fat and substituting vegetable oils.

Tenth, passage of measures before paid.

congress designed to regulate foreign commerce by prohibiting the admission into the United States of certain adulterated grain and seeds, said to be unfit for agricultural purposes.

Favorable action upon all of these measures will be strenuously urged by the American Farm Bureau federation during the farm session, scheduled to commence around November 20.

Usurious Charges. Concerning the limitation of interest rates on federal money, the bureau charges that farmers over a wide area of the country have been paying as high as 10 per cent interest for loans, and at the same time commissions ranging up to 10 per cent.

With the view of reducing the spread between redemptor rates and those rates charged by banks on loans, legislation will be pressed, urging that "no draft, or bill shall be admitted to discount unless (1) it is accompanied by a certificate of the member banks showing both the rate on discount and the rate of commission charged by such bank member, and (2) does not exceed by more than 2 per cent the discount rate of such federal reserve bank."

Under the provisions of this bill banks rediscounting paper and obtaining the money at a rate of 4 per cent would be permitted to charge the borrower 2 per cent in addition, or 6 per cent. This, it is said, would give the banks opportunity to do business on a 50 per cent margin on their investment and would result in farmers obtaining money at 6 per cent, instead of at 5 or possibly 10 per cent, rates which have frequently heretofore been paid.

JOHNSTON SPEAKS AT LABOR TEMPLE

8 Hours for Nurses.

A motion made on the floor of the Atlanta Federation of Trades Wednesday night directing the executive committee of that body to institute a movement to secure an eight-hour day for the under-graduate nurses at Grady hospital aroused a storm of protest from some of the delegates, some of whom contended that as these young women are students, and not employees of the city in the sense that they earn their livelihood by their work, the federation should not ask that the twelve-hour day now in force be changed.

The outcome of the matter was an amendment to the original motion directing the executive committee to secure full information regarding the matter, after a painstaking investigation, and that a report be made to the federation before official action is taken.

A meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Trades was held last night at the Labor Temple, when Superintendent Steve R. Johnston, of Grady hospital, was allowed the privilege of the floor to address the body on the workings of the institution over which he presides.

"The more I think about the matter of admissions to Grady hospital," said Mr. Johnston, "the more I am in favor of admitting one-third pay and two-thirds charity patients."

Mr. Johnston gave an account of his stewardship at Grady, saying that when he went to the institution it was in a very much rundown condition, with poor equipment and no nurses' home.

Today, he declared, Atlanta has a class hospital complete for white and one complete for colored people under the same management. The institution, he said, averages 300 cases a day, serving 1,500 meals, and that the number of patients between 1915 and 1920 was 325. Grady has treated 20,000 patients since January 1, with mortality of 7 per cent.

Mr. Johnston was polite with questions as to the method of investigating people as to ability to pay. He said emergency cases were admitted whether able to pay or not.

Thousands Excluded.

In closing, Mr. Johnston said that between 2,000 and 3,000 people had been excluded from the hospital after the investigation had been made concerning their financial affairs.

The superintendent of the hospital was assured of the friendliness of the federation by Louise P. Marquardt and a rising vote of thanks and confidence was given Mr. Johnston by the delegates present. Mr. Marquardt said there was no fight against him by the federation. Several commendatory talks concerning Superintendent Johnston's management of Grady were made by delegates who had had experience with the institution under his regime.

President Emmett L. Quinn corrected what he said was an erroneous report that the central labor body was making any kind of fight on him or Grady hospital.

Mrs. Garner, vice president of Atlanta Union Label league, addressed the federation in the interest of her league, which is allied to the Atlanta Federation of Trades.

Mrs. Garner urged upon the delegates the importance of patronizing goods that carry the union labels. A letter was read from William S. Wier, former printer and delegate to the federation, inviting the members of the body to hear him preach at Fortified Hills church next Sunday on the unique subject, "Jesus Christ, Sweat Shops and the Union Label."

Morrison's Letter.

A letter from Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, in which the labor official stated that propaganda was being sent out to the officers that there is a serious shortage of labor threatened. Mr. Morrison warned the local federation that these stories are being sent out in the interest of a movement to reopen the immigration floodgate again.

Louis P. Marquardt stated that The Constitution of Wednesday morning carried a story to the effect that there is a serious labor shortage. The F. of L. secretary asked that information be gathered in Atlanta concerning the labor shortage here, and a compendium of these reports indicated that there is nothing like a shortage of labor in this city.

On the other hand it was the unanimous belief of every delegate that reported that the opposite state of affairs exists here, many organized laborers being unable to find work. Bricklayers only reported 100 per cent employment. The delegate reporting said that the serious question today to be considered by organized labor is unskilled labor.

Tailors reported that needle trades send goods to Germany to be made up by cheap labor and returned here to be sold.

Carl Karstner said it is very likely that there is a shortage of unskilled labor, and that if such be true the fact should be determined by the fact that many organized crafts come in contact with this class of workers.

The theory was brought out that immigration would not seriously affect organized labor in the south, but a discussion resulted in which it was shown that foreigners who could not speak a word of English are employed in practically all trades in all parts of the country.

Proponents Urge Voters to Support Peach County Measure

Fort Valley, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—Proponents of the constitutional amendment for Peach county, which is to be submitted to the voters in the general election on November 7, expressed confidence today that the measure will be ratified. A four-page leaflet, containing a map of Macon and Houston counties and the proposed Peach county, is being distributed.

Macon county really makes a net gain by the division since Houston ceded to Macon several years ago about 65 square miles and Peach county gets back only a part of this cession.

Peach county will be a compact, convenient area traversed from north to south by the Central railroad with every citizen within easy reach of the county seat. It will contain the towns of Centerville, Fowlesville, Byron and Port Valley.

The creation will leave the old counties with their courthouses, jails, poor farms, and equipment and all other property. The creation will add to the happiness of the people of this section, will enhance property values and thus contribute to the material welfare of the state.

After the division Houston county will have an area of 12,500 square miles and 84,160,000 of tax value, including corporation values, says the pamphlet.

Woman Pastor Raps Sewing Circle Piety Of Modern Pastors

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

(United News Staff Correspondent)

New York, October 25.—If there were fewer soft-handed, illy-voiced, flirtatious preachers of religion, there would be fewer cynics critics-members of the spiritual ignorant to pay them heed and fewer debaucheries of the cloth by such clergymen as the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall of New Brunswick.

After pausing to affirm these sentiments concerning the day's two tingling religious topics, the Rev. Mary M. Rogers, assistant pastor of Brooklyn's Big Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal church, and the only woman to preach at the Methodist Episcopal faith in this part of the country, seized another grip on the big subject of America's religious faults and boldly spanked it.

She is no bestial Billy Sunday either, but an earnest and dignified person, approaching middle-age, who holds religion too sacred to slant it. She has come to recognize, however, a repellent factor in the sewing-circle piety of too many ministers of the present day.

Harvey's Position.

As for Colonel George Harvey, who represents the United States government at King George's court, Miss Rogers at first thought it too bad that he had taken advantage of his prominence to give such loud voice to those doubts of his countrymen's ten commandments. But on second thought, she agreed, maybe it was a good thing to get such matters into discussion so that the forces of religion might say their say with the opportunity of equal prominence.

"Mr. Harvey says, I see, that women may infer that they have carte blanche to do all the things forbidden by the ten commandments because the commandments apparently were made for men only," said the woman pastor, reviewing the account of his speech, in London.

Of course the commandments do apply to both men and women. The tenth commandment specifically forbids coveting thy neighbor's wife, but she was told that it likewise forbids coveting thy neighbor's husband. The only reason why husbands weren't mentioned, too, is that men are polygamists, whereas women in the past at least, were monogamous.

Would Be Practical.

But if there be any doubt about it—considering the day's divorces and small-arms practice—Miss Rogers is willing to be practical. Let there be no doubt that women must not covet their neighbor's husbands. That would be a simple way of allaying the confusion which seems to possess the minds of some.

Urging the necessity for appointing a woman as auxiliary pastor of every Christian church in America, she went into the subject of the nice-nice preacher and the aversion to his side of which exists in the hearts of virile men who thirst for religion but can't swallow spiritual cambric tea.

"The trouble is," he said, "that there are a lot of foolish, insincere women, who over-eat and over-dress and have not enough to do, and who flutter around the men of the ministry. They regard them almost as Gods. They harm the ministers."

Courses Suspicion.

"Takes that New Brunswick minister, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall. He was in a dangerous position and there are many clergymen who, in making pastoral calls, usually pick out the women of their congregations. Unless a minister's nobility is very broad and deep he is in danger. He causes the world to look on the church with suspicion."

"And the clergy is honeycombed with such men. They make little talks at strawberry festivals and rummage sales, whereas they should have women assistants for such duties, which are not matters of religion at all. Let the men take part in many affairs and then men will feel that the minister understands when they come to him for spiritual counsel."

Miss Rogers has come into prominence not only by her ordination as a minister but principally because of her charges that many of the men of the clergy take to the profession because it affords ease and influence, not because of any spiritual urging to preach the divine message.

THOMASVILLE MAY GET LOWER LIGHTS RATE

Thomasville, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—The rates for light here may be lowered after the first of January, recommendation to this effect having been made to the committee on light and water of the city council by Chairman McDougald, of the committee.

This lowering would put the prices back to a pre-war basis, the rate having been raised when the price of coal and other expenses were much increased. Instead of the discount being as at present, 10 per cent, it will be put at 20, or a flat rate of 10 cents.

The light and water plant has had a most successful year, during which the plant has financed the building of a new home for itself. The Thomasville plant is regarded as a model of efficiency and economy and has often been visited by committees from other towns.

ATLANTA DISTRICT TWICE SUBSCRIBED BOND ALLOTMENT

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, October 25.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Over-subscription of the Atlanta federal reserve district to the last treasury bonds, closed recently, amounted to over $14,000,000, or more than double the allotment, it was announced today. The allotment for the Atlanta district was $14,158,100, while the amount subscribed was $29,008,100.

The record of the district compared favorably with those of other sections of the country, and is said to indicate a marked revival of financial activity in the south.

Finds Mother After Searching For 28 Years

St. Louis, Mo., October 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Told in infancy his mother was dead, but steadfastly believing her alive, Carroll E. Norris has found her after a 28-year search which carried him part way around the world. The mother, too, had been told her son was dead. They now are living here.

Norris, who is 31 years old, explained his father died when he was 3 years old. He was turned over to an uncle, as his mother was unable to support him. His uncle put him in an orphan asylum, and later in an industrial school. He had been told at the orphan's home that his mother was dead, Norris narrated.

When 12 years old he escaped and worked his way to all parts of the country searching for his mother, and at the age of 17, became a sailor and visited Mexico, Alaska, South America, Africa, and Europe.

He then explained that after he had been placed in the orphan's home, his mother sought him, but she was told he had died. This was the result of an apparent mistake in the institution's records, he said.

Drifting to Carrollton, Illinois, he said he learned he had a cousin in Jerseyville, Ill., and going there he learned his mother was alive and well. "There's your mother now, crossing the street," his cousin told him. "I went out and mother approached me and told me she was looking for me. I knew instantly she was my mother, and we fell into a big embrace."

St. Louis, Mo.—The Terminal Railroad association has re-employed about 450 of its 600 union shopmen who went on strike July 1. It was announced today. The men were taken on as new employees.

Ex-Convict's Right To Hold Public Office in Court

Madison, Wis., October 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The right of a former convict to hold public office and the authority of state courts to question the eligibility of nominees for the legislature to a place on the general election ballot was questioned today in arguments before the Wisconsin supreme court.

Joseph Barber seeks to have his name printed on the November general election ballot as republican nominee for the state senate. The supreme court assumed jurisdiction of the case when it issued an alternative writ of prohibition October 10, restraining Circuit Judge A. H. Reid, from proceeding further with a suit started to keep the name of Barber from the ticket of candidates.

This writ had been quashed, G. M. Sheldon, attorney for Judge Reid, and Ralph M. Smith, Barber's opponent, argued upon the court, contending that under the constitution, a man who has served time in prison for an infamous crime, is ineligible to hold public office and that the legislature is not the sole judge of the election and qualification of its members until they are finally elected. Nomination, he asserted, was not tantamount to election.

M. B. O'Brien, counsel for Barber, argued that although his client had served time in prison for an allegedly infamous crime committed in 1898, constitution of the state could not deny him a place on the ballot as the republican nominee, without affecting the constitutional right of the legislature to be the sole judge of the election and qualifications of its members.

SAYS TARIFF BARS PAYMENT OF DEBTS

Sir George Paish, British Economist, Tells How High Duties Handicap War Debt Settlements.

New York, October 25.—Payment of the allied war debt to the United States will be extremely difficult unless American removes its tariff barriers and permits the importation of foreign goods, Sir George Paish, the British economist, said in an address to the American Manufacturers' Export association here.

While he did not mention the recent Fordney-McCumber tariff act by name, he said: "The endeavor of the American government to prevent the import of goods and produce by erecting tariff or other barriers for the purpose of keeping out the goods of the other nations is action which I am convinced neither they nor the American people have fully considered."

All Nations Act Alike. Great Britain, he said, will have difficulty in repaying her debt until America is willing to accept payment either in goods or services, Sir George said. He also declared that gold received in payment for interest should be placed in the federal reserve banks where it would stimulate buying power instead of being stacked away in the vaults of the treasury department.

"The gold might just as well be consigned back to the reefs from which it was extracted as to rest in the treasury vaults," he said.

"The action of the American government in endeavoring to prevent the debtor nations from meeting their obligations to America does not differ from the action of European nations in erecting tariff barriers to the import of goods from the nations which are indebted to them either for loans or reparations."

Ruin Fast Approaching. "The statement of all nations are, indeed, engaged in a common effort to prevent the nations from meeting their obligations to America does not differ from the action of European nations in erecting tariff barriers to the import of goods from the nations which are indebted to them either for loans or reparations."

Dr. Julius Klein, director of bureau of foreign and domestic commerce in the department of commerce at Washington, said that with a few exceptions the business outlook is better the world over. Trade is improving almost everywhere throughout the world, he said, but the financial situation is hindering business development in western Europe.

RULING IS REVERSED ON VOTE FOR WILSON

Trenton, N. J., October 25.—The ruling made several days ago by the Mercer county board of elections which deprived former President Woodrow Wilson from voting in the state of New Jersey under the absentee voters' law was reversed last night by State Attorney-General McCran.

The decision of the attorney-general is passed on a supreme court ruling which holds that a voter's residence is determined by his intention. Under the decision Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will vote as citizens of Princeton, N. J.

State to Finish Testimony Today At Rosier Trial

Philadelphia, October 25.—At the close of today's session of the trial of Mrs. Catherine Rosier, the commonwealth announced that it would rest its case tomorrow. Mrs. Rosier, who is under indictment for the murder of her husband, Oscar Rosier, and his stenographer, Miss Mildred Geraldine Reckitt, is on trial at this time only for the latter's murder.

The prosecution has seven more witnesses to examine. The defense is expected to wind up its case Saturday.

Identification of the blood-stained garments worn by Miss Reckitt and a recital by physicians of the medical details of the case occupied most of today's session.

James H. Foy, a detective, testified that Mrs. Rosier exclaimed in his presence: "He killed his first wife. She died of a broken heart."

Mrs. Rosier faints as this statement was made. Foy also said she confessed she had taken several cups of wine before the shooting.

Dr. Frank C. Gruen, a Jefferson hospital interne, testified that he had heard both victims say Mrs. Rosier had shot them.

Judge Baughman, prior to the noon recess, announced he had ordered stricken from the testimony elicited from witnesses concerning the will made by Oscar Rosier on his death bed, saying that the nature of the instrument or the financial effect made on the defendant had no bearing on the killing.

The quiet of court was suddenly shattered this afternoon when a woman arose in the rear of the court and screamed:

"Let God be her judge. God will take care of you. She should be hanged, saying that the nature of the instrument or the financial effect made on the defendant had no bearing on the killing."

The woman was hustled out of court. She said her name was Sweet Marie Pettijohn, a street evangelist.

UNPRECEDENTED RUSH OF FLORIDA TOURISTS

Jacksonville, Fla., October 25.—Officials of the Clyde Steamship company announced today that the movement of tourists to Florida is under way on a scale never before equalled this early in the season.

Constitutive vessels from north Atlantic ports to Jacksonville are arriving loaded to their full capacity and local agents of the several lines have been advised that virtually all space has been reserved for all sailings during the next few weeks.

The railroads are feeling the effects of the tourist movement and although extra cars have been added to the through trains within the three weeks officials announce that it will be necessary to put on more within the next few days.

Tourists who come to the state in automobiles are passing over the turnpikes by the score. G. Norman Baughman, Tampa business man who drove to Jacksonville yesterday stated on arriving here last night that on the 39 miles to the Dixie highway between St. Augustine and Jacksonville, a run of two hours, he met 36 automobiles bearing license tags of other states and with tourists aboard all bound south.

ALSTON TO ADDRESS ATLANTA MERCHANTS

The address to be delivered by Robert C. Alston, prominent attorney and civic leader of Atlanta, before the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association Thursday evening, at the chamber of commerce café, promises to attract widespread interest among the members. Mr. Alston has selected as his subject "The value of a retail merchant and a retail merchants' organization in a community."

A round-table discussion has been arranged for the meeting led by five prominent members, each of whom will tell briefly of one outstanding sales and service idea tried and proven successful in his business.

In addition to the educational feature the monthly meetings committee headed by A. L. Myers, chairman, has arranged a special program of musical numbers which will be rendered while the supper is in progress.

DRY RULE HELD UP ON FOREIGN SHIPS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, October 25.—Enforcement of the national prohibition law with respect to foreign shipping within American territorial waters will await a final interpretation of that section of the statute by the supreme court, it was indicated today by administration officials. The interpretation is expected by government officials next month or in December.

Decision of the executive department to withhold enforcement of the law as construed by Attorney-General Daugherty, in his opinion of October 6, was formally communicated today to Associate Justice Brandeis of the supreme court. Justice Brandeis subsequently refused to grant various steamship lines a stay against the enforcement of Federal Judge Hand's decision at New York dismissing their application for a permanent injunction restraining federal agents from applying the Volstead act.

Justice Brandeis, who was sitting in chambers, was understood to have held that the decision to withhold enforcement had removed any necessity for a legal test.

Order by Mellon. The decision as to enforcement was incorporated in a formal order issued by Secretary Mellon to customs officers and prohibition agents.

A statement issued by the treasury secretary explaining the order said regulations are being prepared for putting into effect the opinion of the attorney-general and until such regulations have been worked out "those at present in force will prevail."

When the regulations governing enforcement of the law are approved, a reasonable time will be given to meet the new conditions, the statement said.

Counsel for the steamship companies in their petition to Justice Brandeis contended that enforcement of the Volstead act would cause irreparable damages to their business and would lead to diplomatic difficulties.

A statement by the department of justice emphasized that the government did not concur in these contentions and acquiesced in the petition for a writ solely on the ground that preparations had been completed to expedite consideration of the case by the supreme court.

Would Avoid Tangles. One of the elements entering into a decision to defer enforcement is understood to have been a desire to avoid any possible international embarrassment pending a final interpretation of the law by the court of last resort. Protests against enforcement of the law are expected from foreign governments.

Should the supreme court uphold the Daugherty ruling some administration officials have said a situation might be brought about which would result in a request for congress to modify the Volstead act.

While the Daugherty ruling, insofar as it affects American vessels, already has been put into force, prohibition officers explained today that this ruling did not prohibit such craft from carrying liquor for purely medicinal purposes. There is a requirement of British law that every ship sailing from Great Britain provide one gallon of brandy for every 100 steerage passengers.

THREW SOUP AT WIFE AND SCALDED BABY

Chicago, October 25.—Joseph Goodman was held by the police today for scalding his three-year-old daughter, Hattie, with a bowl of soup which he threw at his wife. The child may be disfigured for life as a result of her burns, according to the police. Goodman's wife said her husband threw the soup at her because it was too hot.

Canadian Found Dead.

Waco, Texas, October 25.—Frank H. Hewitt, 56, a commissioner of immigration for the Canadian government with headquarters at Kansas City, was found dead in his bed here today. Death was due to a paralytic stroke, physicians said. Mr. Hewitt's home was in Winnipeg and he came to Waco in charge of a Canadian exhibit at the Texas cotton palace, an annual exposition.

Airplanes with a speed of 200 miles an hour are claimed to be the fastest in the world.

New Government To Heal Breach In Entente, Hope

BY HUDSON HAWLEY. Paris, October 25.—An opportunity to reconstitute the entente between France and Great Britain and resume the co-operation between the two governments which has been lacking for the last two years is seen by officials and the press in the new British cabinet.

Unanimous approval of the ministry selected by Premier Bonar Law is seen as a general expression of the new conservative government that will be more open-minded toward French problems than Lloyd George's administration.

The press urges the two governments to establish full contact at the earliest moment. A conference for the purpose of effecting an understanding between Great Britain and France regarding the whole mass of outstanding questions is suggested by The Journal Des Debats. A general agreement of this nature, reached at the outset, is declared would be preferable to dealing with each question as it assumes an acute form.

This journal, emphasizing the difference in temperament between Bonar Law and Lloyd George, believes that negotiations of the character suggested would be possible through the new British premier.

The semi-official Temps says that French public opinion cannot rest solely on the basis of individual sentiments; the two governments must find a common basis in their material interests. Taking a view opposite to that expressed by The Journal Des Debats, the Temps urges that London and Paris deal with questions separately as they arise.

CAPTAIN RIDDLE TELLS OF THREAT OF JAPANESE NAVY

The threat of the Japanese navy is carried in the cruisers upon which no limitation of armament is now in effect. The Japanese navy is at the mercy of Japan if war should ever exist between the United States, as these cruisers could easily destroy American supply ships, according to Captain Riddle, U. S. N., in command at the navy yards of Norfolk, Va.

Captain Riddle was called to Atlanta a few days ago on account of the illness of his sister, Mrs. James Whitford Russell, of Lafayette drive.

In contrasting the most powerful ships of the two nations Captain Riddle stated that the largest Japanese dreadnaught carried a broadside of 24,000 tons while the U. S. S. Maryland, America's most powerful dreadnaught, carried a broadside of only 16,000 tons. The Japanese craft are also faster than the "Maryland," he said.

With reference to the naval power of Japan, Captain Riddle said: "The public little understands the real significance of the disarmament conference. The apparent result was that Japan was to maintain a navy three-fifths as powerful as those of the United States and Great Britain."

"The real outcome is that the American naval forces have endeavored to cut the Japanese navy by example, but it is an example which Japan will not follow. It was proposed at the conference to limit battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and aircraft."

"Japan fought this measure and won. There is no limitation on cruisers and this type of boat carries the threat of the Japanese navy. They are faster than any American vessels and are powerfully equipped."

"In case of an attack on the Philippines they could destroy American supply ships and return for renewed attacks unharmed."

Boatwright May Succeed Bennett As U. S. Attorney

Macon, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—Speculation as to who would be named the next United States district attorney for the southern district of Georgia to succeed John W. Bennett, resigned, centered upon F. G. Boatwright, of Cordele, when it was learned that Mr. Boatwright had been summoned to Washington by telegraph, supposedly for a conference with the attorney-general.

Mr. Bennett's resignation, which was tendered to the republican administration last May, recently was accepted to be effective November 1.

When the resignation was accepted there was considerable doubt expressed among local republicans that Mr. Boatwright would be named to the place since he was recently rejected for the federal judgeship in favor of Judge William H. Barrett, a democrat.

Mr. Bennett's resignation was prompted by increasing business of a private nature, he said. He will resume his law practice in Waycross after the first of the month.

PROMINENT ARCHITECT DEAD BELOW WINDOW

New York, October 25.—John A. Warren of the Beaux Art School of Architecture and a brother of Whitney Warren, internationally known architect, jumped or fell to his death today from a window in his sixth floor apartment in West 64th street.

The architect's body, clad in silk pajamas, was found by a milk man at the bottom of an airshaft. Police declared Warren had committed suicide but this theory was discredited by his brother, who said Lloyd had been suffering from syncope since an injury to his head sometime ago and that he probably toppled from the window while seeking a breath of air.

Besides his work at the Beaux Art School Warren was well known for the assistance he gave to poverty-stricken young artists and architects. Assistant Medical Examiner Gonzales also expressed belief that death had been accidental.

Whitney Warren said his brother only recently had returned from Europe. Six weeks ago he was in an automobile accident in Italy, and his head was badly cut. Some gauze still covered the wound when he was picked up dead, indicating a recent dressing.

"He had everything in the world to live for—plenty of money, a great devotion to his art, for which he was ready to make all sorts of sacrifices, and did, and I am sure he would not have deliberately killed himself," said Warren.

The trustees probably will hold a meeting within the next few weeks to decide upon the next step to be taken.

The settling basin covers three acres of land and the filter capacity is 1,500,000 gallons daily. The source of supply is from Potato creek. The equipment also is ample to help out the city in case of trouble with its supply or in case of fire, and also to furnish water to the Peppers plant for a bleachery and finishing plant to be installed in the near future.

The banana plant is immune from disease of any sort and bears two crops a year.

What education and common sense are doing for thousands

THOUSANDS of people are learning that they cannot drink coffee or tea at supper time and get a good night's sleep.

Experience has taught these men and women to recognize that the caffeine in both coffee and tea is often responsible for a wakeful, restless night, and a nervous "next day."

If you have reason to believe that coffee or tea is causing your headaches, insomnia or nervousness, why not drink rich, refreshing Postum instead.

Postum is the delicious golden-brown cereal beverage that many former coffee-drinkers prefer for its satisfying flavor alone.

Ask your grocer today for Postum and begin serving this delicious beverage at meal times—and see how well you like it.

Postum comes in two forms—Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling fully twenty minutes.

BRITISH LIBERALS ISSUE MANIFESTO

London, October 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The election manifesto of the independent liberal party was issued yesterday at a meeting presided over by former Premier H. H. Asquith. It declares that the coalition has broken up in general confusion and discord, leaving behind it an unexampled record of extravagance and failure, and asserts that both wings of the coalition are responsible for its misdeeds and that neither can escape its share of public condemnation.

"Liberalism is not socialism," says the manifesto. "Liberalism repudiates the doctrine of warfare against private enterprise. It stands for:

"First, peace disarmament, made secure through the league of nations.

"Second, prompt revision and settlement of reparations and inter-allied debts.

Drastic Economy.

"Third, drastic economy in public expenditure and abandonment of the policy of military adventures abroad.

"Fourth, fulfillment by the community of its responsibility for securing the workers against the hardships of unemployment; co-operation between capital and labor and honest and fair treatment of organized labor as the only basis of industrial peace.

"Fifth, unqualified free trade, with the immediate repeal of the safeguarding of industries act and similar protective measures.

"Sixth, maintenance of such essential social services as education, housing and public health.

"Seventh, political and legal equality for men and women.

"Eighth, comprehensive reform of the existing land system, including taxation and the rating of land values.

"Ninth, democratic reform of the electoral system.

"Tenth, readjustment of the electoral system by the introduction of proportional representation."

The manifesto asserts that no confidence could be placed in the coalition's declarations, whether in the industrial or international sphere. The coalition has shown itself, according to this pronouncement, equally incapable of securing good understanding abroad or pursuing a consistent policy at home. The nation demanded a complete change, conviction instead of compromise, economy instead of extravagance and waste.

Reminding the electorate that it was liberalism which denounced the recklessness of the government's disastrous and costly adventures in Russia and Mesopotamia and fought the battle against protection and government interference in trade, the manifesto says the time has arrived to restore liberalism to its rightful place in the councils of the nation.

Beer and Wines Are Real Issues In Ohio Contests

BY ROBERT J. BENDER
United News Staff Correspondent.

New York, October 24.—The principal candidates in Ohio's election campaign this fall are beer and light wines. Interest in other candidates is apathetic, despite the fact that Ohio is the present home state and nearly every prominent administration leader is, has been, or will be on the job to put over the republican ticket.

It looks as if Ohio would go democrat, re-elect Senator Pomerene, elect Vice Donahay, democratic gubernatorial candidate, and retire from 8 to 15 of the present solid republican delegation of 22 house members.

The republican campaign hinges almost entirely upon the national administration at Washington. It's all Harding. "Will Harding's home state turn him down? No. Never!" is the G. P. slogan.

But, like Wilson in New Jersey, Harding is not so popular in the white house as he was just before election. Criticism everywhere. He is charged with "grandstanding" in playing the political game too hard and not accomplishing much. So, the feverish outpourings of the republican organization, not taking hold, their publicity is getting newspaper notice. Elaborate plans for rallies are made—and voters don't show up for them.

In Real Issue.

These were the writer's observations on a recent trip through the state, further substantiated by communications just received from observers in Ohio. The reason is that interest centers on the beer and light wine amendment to be voted on at the same time as the candidates.

It is a real issue. People generally are curious to see what will happen if Ohio adopts it. The Anti-Saloon league, in the popular eye, has become too big. People think it's autocratic and it does wield a potent political influence. Its fight against the wet amendment is getting little press notice.

On moral grounds the Anti-Saloon league is making little headway against the beer and light wine movement. The fact is that thousands of people in Ohio are making their own wine. Every time they see a gas or water meter man going into their cellars they get a fright. Think it's a prohibition officer. The women especially are nervous on such occasions. Adoption of the beer and wine proposal, many believe, would terminate this worry. Being home-brewers themselves they don't see the wet amendment as a moral issue.

Democrats Wet. If the state goes wet, it will certainly go democratic. Both Donahay and Pomerene have been endorsed by the wets. On the other hand the amendment is expected to greatly stimulate the voting and if the state goes dry, Carmel Thompson, republican gubernatorial candidate and personal friend of Harding, who has been endorsed by the Anti-Saloon league, as has Congressman Fess, the republican candidate for senate, will be helped. Pomerene, however, is a better vote-getter than Fess and is generally expected to win however the state votes on the beer issue.

On the beer and wine amendment the city vote, coming in first, probably will give early indications that the proposal has carried. There is a likelihood that the rural vote, coming in later, will then turn this apparent victory either into defeat or an extremely close finish. Finally, if passed, the proposal won't mean anything anyhow, except as exerting a possible influence on other states later. It can't be put into practice under the law.

Reopen Question. Victory for the wets, nevertheless, would unquestionably reopen the whole beer and wine issue on a large scale throughout the country—particularly if other election contests, such as the Edwards-Frølinghuysen fight in New Jersey, the Reed-Brewster engagement in Missouri and numerous congressional tilts, result favorably to the wets.

PI KAPPA PHIS PLAN CLOSER CO-OPERATION

Plans for the closer co-operation of active and alumni members of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity in Atlanta were perfected Wednesday night at a joint banquet of the Tech, Oglethorpe and Emory chapters at the Daffodil cafe.

One of the first schemes to be put into effect will be a series of Sunday afternoon social gatherings to be held alternately at the three chapter houses. The Emory chapter will hold the initial gathering at its home Sunday afternoon, Tech will entertain the following week, and Oglethorpe the next.

Announcement was also made of the first fall meeting of the Atlanta alumni chapter, which will be held at the Tech chapter house on Wednesday night, November 2. The alumni chapter now has more than 50 members, and it is the plan to enlarge its scope until it includes all members of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity in Atlanta and vicinity.

Ray K. Smathers, Emory athletic coach, who is regional advisor for the fraternity in Georgia, acted as toastmaster at the banquet. He announced that committees have been named to arrange for the national biennial convention of Pi Kappa Phi in Atlanta during December, 1923. Lawton Ellis, former supreme treasurer, also spoke in behalf of the national organization.

Including the members of the three Atlanta collegiate chapters, there are more than 200 Pi Kappa Phis in Atlanta. The chapter at the University of Georgia, at Athens, and a petitioning local at Mercer, at Macon, also plan to join the social gatherings here.

VALUE OF INSURANCE STRESSED BY JURIST

No will, however cleverly drawn up, can give a dying one's loved ones protection from starvation and hardship like life insurance can, in the opinion of Judge Charles J. Orison, distinguished Indianapolis jurist and lawyer, who addressed the Atlanta Association of Life Insurers at their meeting at the chamber of commerce Wednesday.

"The sacred obligations," said Judge Orison, "that live after a man should be invariable to business pirates. Written today, a life insurance policy in future speaks eternal verity. Your name on the policy and the name of the beneficiary cannot be changed one jot or one tittle by all the courts of the land, but no will is incontestible in the courts."

Judge Orison declared to the life

NAVY OFFICERS TO DECIDE FUTURE OF RADIO STATION

Washington, October 25.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The Savannah naval radio station will not be closed immediately, but the future status of the station depends upon the report of a board of high ranking naval officers now investigating all naval stations, was the assurance given Senator William J. Harris through his office here by Admiral Cointz, chief of naval operations, this afternoon.

Senator Harris has received communications from Clerk Lindsay Broughton, of the Savannah city council and President S. N. Harris, of the board of trade.

The navy department says that the shortage of funds and personnel made it necessary to close some of the naval stations, and that a special board was investigating the matter throughout the country but the department says it is not their intention to close or abandon any naval activity until the report of that board has been received, considered and acted upon.

Senator Harris, who is now in Georgia, will confer with the navy department upon his return to Washington, it was stated at his office here.

GIVE SILVER KNIFE TO DEAN JOHNSTON

A handsome silver pocket knife was presented to Rev. T. H. Johnston by the Lions' club at the luncheon Wednesday at the chamber of commerce. Rev. Mr. Johnston is chaplain of the club, and luncheon Wednesday was the first meeting of the kind he had attended since returning from a tour of Europe.

Quite an interesting discussion of the conditions in Europe featured an address by Dean Johnston. He visited Germany and a number of other European countries, and his impressions regarding conditions there and in Turkey met with great interest with the club members. He also saw the "Passion Play" while in Europe, and is scheduled to deliver a series of lectures on this subject.

It was announced that E. E. Dallis, of the Johnson-Dallis Advertising agency, had been invited to deliver an address at the luncheon next Saturday. Mr. Dallis recently addressed the Ad club of New York and other gatherings, and he has been asked to appear before the Lions' club to tell of experiences and information gained through these tours.

The entertainment committee was instructed to draw up plans for a dance to be held at a date to be announced later and their report will be received at the next meeting. The question of changing the date of meeting from Wednesday to Tuesday of each week will also come up for consideration.

Boy Wounded by Gun That Was Silent 15 Years; Is Recovering

Waycross, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—Young James Mullis, son of J. M. Mullis, of Atkinson county, is rapidly recovering at a local hospital from a gunshot wound accidentally inflicted by a playmate recently.

Attending physicians believe one of the muscles of the boy's arm is severed, though it is not yet certain whether or not a blood vessel has been cut.

The two boys were playing with an old muzzle-loading gun near Pearson. It was discharged when one of the boys struck a match on the barrel, the bullet lodging in young Mullis' arm.

The gun had not been discharged in 15 years.

Oklahoma Congressman Fails to Prove Theft Charges; Pays Costs

Americus, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—Manuel Herrick, congressman from the Oklahoma City (Oklahoma) district, was assessed costs of court today after he failed to sustain his prosecution of Charles Rousch for the alleged theft of airplane parts.

The facts in the case as brought out in the hearing today show that Congressman Herrick and his partner had an agreement relative to the sale of planes. During the congressman's absence a ship was sold to Rousch.

Later Herrick believed that he ship contained parts that had been stolen. When Rousch arrived in Montgomery he was held by the authorities. Herrick went there with a warrant. After consultation, the defendant returned to America. Rousch was ordered discharged this morning by Judge J. N. Carter.

Y., next July, was decided upon by the executive council of the party in session here today. This is expected to be presented at a conference here November 11 and 12 of the party's officers. It was also decided to prepare a "1922 woman's charter of rights," drafted along the lines of the first woman's rights charter drawn up in the Seneca Falls conference of 1848.

Women from nine states and the District of Columbia attended the meeting which was presided over by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, president of the party. Miss Alice Paul reported on party activities and announced a gift to the party by Mrs. Belmont of $178,000.

SOLO NUMBERS ARE HIT BY AGES

Brannon and Bennett Take Spotlight in Two Best Offerings of Constitution Music-Makers.

Warner's Seven Aces, The Atlanta Constitution orchestra, last night again went over big. They had one feature alone that would have held up the whole program, but it didn't have to do that, for every number was a feature.

The way in which Warner's Seven Aces, The Atlanta Constitution orchestra, play music beats any other orchestra when it comes to real music and syncopation. Last night the program was a typical one, with some of the best numbers of the season on it.

Two requests were played last night by the Aces. One was "O Sole Mio," with a solo part by Ralph Bennett, violinist of the Aces. This is a number that always is well received by radio audiences when it is presented by Warner's Seven Aces. The other request offering was "Three O'Clock in the Morning," played for a listener who asked for it during the program.

The other numbers last night by the Aces were "Lonesome Lovesick Blues," and the "Gypsy Blues." At the close of the musical program, by James F. Watson, president of the Atlanta School of Oratory and Expression, gave a humorous reading, "The Duck and the Kangaroo."

4 ARTISTS HEARD IN WGM CONCERT

Listeners last night to Station WGM were given an unusually good concert by Mrs. Olivette Butler, soprano; Mrs. Alma Garrett Ware, alto; Miss Grace Butler, pianist; and L. T. Johnson, baritone.

The program last night was arranged by Mrs. Butler, who has been heard several times before from Station WGM. Mrs. Ware, who took a prominent part in the concert, also has played audiences before from Station WGM. Miss Grace Butler, one of Mrs. Ware's pupils, and Mr. Johnson made their Station WGM debut last night and pleased radio enthusiasts greatly.

The program last night was opened with a piano solo, "Last Hope," by Mrs. Ware. It was a masterly presentation and was a fitting opening for such a program as was given last night.

The second number introduced Mr. Johnson to Station WGM's audience. He sang "Old Pal, Why Don't You Answer Me," a number which has become very popular lately. Mrs. Butler played the piano accompaniment.

In the third number Miss Butler was presented for the first time from Station WGM. She played "Rustle of Spring."

The feature number of the entire program was fourth, when Mrs. Butler sang "The Holy City," by Adams, a difficult number in which she was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ware.

Mrs. Ware, for the fifth number, played "Etude," by Chopin. Mrs. Butler and Mr. Johnson gave the next selection, which was "A Perfect Day," by Carrie Jacobs Bond, in a duet. Mrs. Butler played the piano accompaniment.

After Mrs. Ware's next solo, "Butterfly," by Grieg, Mrs. Butler and Mr. Johnson sang two more duets. One was "Kiss Me Again," which was to be the closing number on the program. However, My Wild Irish Rose, a request number, followed and closed the excellent program.

CONCERT TONIGHT
BY KURT MUELLER

A program combining three eminent artists Atlanta will be given between 9 and 9:45 o'clock tonight under the direction of Kurt Mueller, who was heard Tuesday evening at Cable hall in a remarkable piano recital. Mr. Mueller will take a prominent part in the concert tonight which he arranged.

On the program tonight at 9 o'clock with Mr. Mueller will be Mrs. Mueller, soprano, and Mrs. Morgan-Stephens, an unusually talented violinist, who has been heard a number of times in concert here.

Mr. Mueller is well-known in Atlanta, especially as a teacher. The recital Tuesday night was his first public appearance in a number of years and his exquisite technique and wonderful expression in the most difficult of numbers found a responsive note in the appreciation of his audience at Cable hall. Mr. Mueller comes to station WGM tonight just after one of his most successful recitals.

Mr. Mueller was heard last week from station WGM and at that time delighted radio enthusiasts with his art.

Mrs. Mueller has been heard frequently in Atlanta in soprano solos and her part of the program will give radio listeners delightful entertainment. Her voice is a rich soprano, which registers unusually well by radio.

There are few musical Atlantans who do not know Mrs. Morgan-Stephens, if only by reputation. She has been heard repeatedly in Atlanta and other southern cities and her reputation as a violinist and Mr. Mueller's art as a pianist assures listeners tonight of some of the best instrumental solos ever given from station WGM.

Unusual interest has been stirred up in a dozen or more states by the concert last Sunday night from Station WGM. The Atlanta Constitution, which featured Nora Allen, lyric soprano, who has been heard several times from Station WGM.

No voice so far from Station WGM has attracted more interest than Miss Allen's, especially in her Sunday night numbers. Letters and cards have been pouring in to Station WGM since Sunday congratulating Miss Allen on her songs Sunday night.

Following a note from Cincinnati Tuesday, Station WGM yesterday received a letter from William J. Stevens, Philadelphia, Pa., in which the writer says: "I am writing to let you know that I received your concert clear and loud Sunday evening. The best selections were the 'Quartet' from 'Rigoletto,' that made a hit at the Metropolitan theater; Miss Allen's solo, 'A Dream,' the corallo solo, 'Just Been Wondering,' and the baritone solo, 'At the End of a Perfect Day.' Also the final quartet number. I enjoyed them all very much."

A letter that is notable however, was one from L. L. Shivers, of the Carter Electric company. Mr. Shivers writes as follows:

"I have been listening in in radio broadcasting just one year ago this month, and I have written not more than three letters to broadcasting stations telling them how good certain features were."

"What I am trying to say here is that Miss Nora Allen on your program at 9 o'clock Sunday night has one of the most beautiful voices I have had the pleasure of listening to, not only in Atlanta, but in all of the other broadcasting stations of the United States. All you need to do in the future is to announce Miss Nora Allen as the star feature on all your programs and you will have all the people in the country listening in. I hope it will be our pleasure to hear Miss Allen a great deal from WGM."

RADIO DEPARTMENT

FIFTEEN MINUTES OF RADIO EACH DAY

BY EDWARD N. DAVIS
Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government

LESSON NO. 183.

Radio Frequency Amplification and Regeneration.
In order to obtain the advantages of one stage of radio frequency amplification, the experimenter may employ the circuit shown in the diagram.

The portion of the diagram included between the dotted lines represents the standard regenerative receiver with tickler coil for feedback. The condenser usually connected in series with the aerial should, in this case, be connected in shunt to the primary of the vario-coupler. The additional apparatus required consists of a hard receiving tube, socket, rheostat, variometer and condenser for tuning the antenna circuit. While not absolutely essential the variable condenser aids in tuning the antenna circuit.

The plate circuit of the extra vacuum tube, which acts as a radio frequency amplifier, is connected to the antenna post of the regenerative receiver, while the plate circuit is completed through the primary of the vario-coupler, the ground binding post being connected to the plate battery. The filament and plate batteries may be employed in this circuit without materially affecting the results obtained.

It is desirable to shunt the filament battery with a potentiometer to a variable tap of which the negative terminal of the plate battery is connected.

A study of the circuit shows that the vario-coupler of the regenerative receiver in this circuit arrangement acts as radio frequency amplifying transformer, the primary and secondary windings being the primary and secondary of the coupler. Tuning to resonance with the incoming wave is accomplished by varying the taps on the windings of the vario-coupler (by the usual switches) and by varying the values of capacity in shunt to these windings by manipulating the primary and secondary condensers.

The antenna circuit is tuned to resonance with the incoming wave by means of the variometer and variable condenser in series in this circuit. The grid and negative side of the filament of the radio frequency amplifying tube are connected across the windings of the variometer in the antenna circuit.

The circuit thus becomes, in effect, a single circuit receiver with one step of radio frequency amplification and recommends itself on account of its simplicity and the need for few instruments in addition to the usual regenerative receiver.

While for clearness sake the circuit is shown with only two tubes and no audio frequency amplification, there is no reason why the usual two or more stages of audio frequency amplification should not be employed in connection with this arrangement. Also the circuit shows a regenerative receiver of the tickler feed back type, although it should be just as practicable to employ the common form of two variometer and vario-coupler receivers.

If it is desired to employ more than one stage of radio frequency amplification, it will be necessary to add a radio frequency transformer as well as the tube and other apparatus for each additional stage, that is, a two-stage amplifier will require one transformer, and a three-stage amplifier, two transformers.

Enroll now for November entrance at the Southern Shorthand and Business University.

Not only will the farmers, who have about finished gathering their cotton and are getting nearly 25 cents a pound for it, bring their sons and daughters to the Southern, during the next two weeks, to begin Business Training, but the out-of-town merchants, professional men and others, will enroll their boys and girls at this long-established and hustling Business School, to be educated for commercial positions.

Of course, many in Atlanta and vicinity will also enter the Southern during the next several days, and get a good start by Christmas toward that splendid position that is always awaiting the well-prepared.

"This is a difficult position to fill, therefore, we will give you one week's tryout and if you hold it, the job is yours," said a business man to a student just leaving the Southern and applying for the place about three weeks ago.

On Thursday morning, just three days after accepting the position, the student was asked what salary he would want and replied, "$25.00 per week, if agreeable."

"Suppose we make it $30.00 per week to begin," the business man said to the beginner.

This only shows that good material, trained at the Southern, finds its reward.

Call, phone or write for catalog, and enter between October 30 and November 7.

LISTENERS ASKING MORE CODE WORK

Radio Enthusiasts From Outside Cities Ask Station WGM to Continue
Lessons in Code.

Indications in letters during the last day or two to Station WGM. The Atlanta Constitution, indicate that Operator A. W. Shropshire will continue the teaching of reception of International Morse code, which is one of the biggest features ever undertaken by any radio broadcasting station in America.

Letters have been pouring into Station WGM in response to the inquiry made by radiophone and in The Constitution as to whether listeners want the code practice continued or whether they want it abandoned.

When Operator Shropshire began instruction in code, he planned to give one letter each day with review and when the alphabet and numerals had been completed it was his plan to discontinue code work. But now the voice of those desiring to learn code has spoken for a continuance of code practice. However, no definite decision in the matter will be taken for several days, for it is the aim of

The Constitution to meet the popular demand in this respect.

Sees Distinction.
Elsworth Brown, of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes: "Please keep up the code lessons. They give you the distinction of being the only big broadcasting station that is doing anything to encourage amateur radio. You are helping me interest several broadcast listeners in learning the code, which will greatly enhance the pleasure of their listening in."

Charles V. Bowles, 23 West Georgia avenue, of Atlanta, puts forth a good argument in his letter for continuance of the code practice. He writes: "You can put me down as one more being in favor of your continuing the good work. On several occasions I was unable to 'affend class' and missed that much of the instruction. You certainly will oblige me, and countless others, by beginning all over again and giving us another opportunity to increase our learning along this line."

L. R. Mobley, of Atlanta, writes: "Would like very much to have the code course repeated. Think we all will be able to get more out of the second course than the first. Your station is certainly putting out good now. Don't see how it could be improved."

Another Tennessee Letter.
Writing from Knoxville, Tenn., J. R. McConkey, says: "For my part, I do not want these lessons cut out, as they are a great help to me in learning the code."

Leaf River, Ill., reports its sentiments through C. E. Buzzell, who writes: "Am interested in your code lessons and want them continued. Being a Morse man of 45 years' service, its good practice for a change of signals, there being seven or eight letters different. Sort of bothers an old-timer."

Pencches are believed to have originated in China, where they have been cultivated from very remote times.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON

A Homely Philosopher.

The craps is a game, I reckon.

Hain't made a good show for the fall?

But what's the use of sighin'?

An' waitin' an' cryin'?

Thank God, there's enough for us all!

We've lost some on cotton, I reckon.

An' 'latters air powerful small!

But what's the use of sighin'?

The fritters are fryin'.

An' there's jes' 'bout enough fer us all.

We'll pull through the winter, I reckon.

We never have gone to the wall!

So, put on the griddle.

An' tune up the fiddle—

There's room in the quadrille fer us all!

This hungry paragraph from The Osborn Enterprise—

If we had a pumpkin, two buckets of coal, some lard, sorghum, an egg and some flour, we would summon all our constructive ingenuity and build a real pie that would at least satisfy our own appetites.

Autumn.

There's a mystic meaning ever in the moaning of the pines,

When the crisp chill of autumn's

In the waning of the year.

When the golden light is fading

From the morning glory vines.

And the leaves that made the glory

Of the trees are brown and sere.

Where the roses lately lingered

Like sweet memories of spring.

Till the fulness of the summer

Made the harvest of the fall.

But the golden rod is blooming.

And the red, rich apples cling.

And the splendor of the autumn's

Light is a picture over all.

"The Timmons kids, they fought me,"

I cried to knock off Bobby's head.

They threw me 'nd they bited me.

The South's Greatest Economic Problem

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

The boll weevil is a subject to write about may be a dry one, but he lives it, it is a live one, all right!

If you don't believe it, ask the cotton farmer.

It is the south's greatest economic problem today.

One day early last spring at my office in Washington I received a telegram from the editor in chief which read something like this—

"Leave at once for the cotton states of the southwest and study among the cotton producers the practical methods employed in growing cotton under boll weevil conditions and give result of your investigations in series of articles," etc.

It is needless to say I had plans for other things that had more appeal to me at the time than boll weevils.

One thing, I had a wistful eye on the annual football game between the Army and Navy, at the polo grounds in New York, and I had already wagered a spring hat on the Navy, and somehow felt I would lose the hat if I missed cheering my favorite,

but—

Orders is orders!

And the next train found me beating it to southwest Texas, via New Orleans.

I decided to stop at New Orleans, at least long enough to look in at the old joint across from the St. Charles hotel, where they used to make the best sarsaparilla on earth, back in the good old days when J. J. Brown used to hold all of his cotton meetings in New Orleans because the foam of a "silver fizz" looked to him so much like "prime midding."

Before leaving Washington I dropped in on the bureau of entomology where they had boll weevils on ice, cooked in alcohol, and in pretty little cages like monkeys in a zoo.

I asked the chief clerk in the propaganda department—and that is about what all of it is—if he had anything on boll weevils.

"Boll weevil! Good Lord, man, we keep a force of clerks just cataloging the different publications dealing with the thing."

And he handed me a pamphlet that covered the titles only of the various works, scientific, experimental, fol-dinary, technical, and so on.

"Send 'em down to the Raleigh hotel," said I.

"When the next truck comes in."

And that afternoon the room clerk wanted to know if I had ordered the document room of the agricultural department cleaned out and the whole blooming business sent to me at the hotel.

I took a valise full of the stuff, and the more I read, as the train pushed along toward the Mississippi, the less

I knew about the boll weevil.

The commingling of Latin names and English technique, and high-sounding scientific phraseology, got my brain whirling, and finally I threw the whole caboodle out of the window, and made a firm determination to go to the root of the subject in the farmers' own fields, and to talk with the planters and get their viewpoint and the benefit of their experience in language that they could speak and

I could understand.

So obsessed with the subject from a practical standpoint was I by the time that I reached New Orleans that

I kept on going without a stop-over and for the next three or four weeks

I stayed in the homes of cotton farmers, big ones and small ones, in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missis-

Camp Praises Work of Wandy Against Michigan

McCullough and Reese
Did Much to Hurl Back
Charges of Yost's Men

Noted Gridiron Authority Says Defensive
Work of Various Teams Provides Big Feature of Season's Campaigning.

BY WALTER CAMP

New York, October 25.—One of the extraordinary features of the football situation throughout the entire country this season is the amount of attention that is being paid to defensive work. There can be no question that the quality of defensive play this year is of higher grade than it has been for years. Notable examples even in the earlier games were provided by the play of the Vanderbilt line, which surprised everyone and held Michigan and the way Brown, engineered by Coach Robinson, assisted by Reggie Brown, the old Harvard student of defensive work, bothered Syracuse. We shall see and hear a great deal more of this phase of play before the season is over.

Many football enthusiasts have wondered greatly at the showing of Vanderbilt against Michigan, in view of the way Yost's men outplayed Ohio State. The truth is that the strong and sound line defense developed by Michigan with the secondary defense fairly close to it prevented Michigan's strong backfield and Kell in particular from getting away with a running game.

McCullough, who can play either end or tackle, was McGugin's strong man on defense, while Reese was remarkably clever at running back kicks.

Pacific coast teams are throwing the forward pass freely, and although some are being anticipated and others fail to find their man, it is this kind of work which best develops this important feature.

If more of the eastern teams would do likewise they would learn more of the possibilities of aerial attack, and, equally important, development of a defense to meet it. Middle western teams are superior in both these departments over some eastern eleven.

The question of middle west honors is complicated on account of conference team schedules. For example, if Chicago, Michigan or Wisconsin had a chance to meet Iowa they might be compared with Yale. But Iowa does not meet any of the three. Chicago and Michigan do not meet, so Michigan chances of comparison with Princeton are lost.

Coach Mearns is giving his Syracuse squad a thorough testing against the kind of plays expected from Penn State next Saturday, but who will surprise. Hunk Borek has worked up with the Nittany Lions that Mearns still is unaware of remains to be seen. Borek gave the Penn State regulars a thorough drill today.

Coach Byrd, who saw the clash between the University and State at Raleigh last Thursday, declares that while Bill Fetzer has a formidable eleven, he believes his charges have an even chance to bag the long end of the score.

Cargina won the laurels in a brilliant game in Baltimore last October and Byrd is anxious to have his turn at victory.

In fact, Byrd saved a number of his men at Princeton in order that they might be in the best of shape for the game at Chapel Hill. After the game at Princeton, Byrd removed his entire first string backfield and kept them out of the remainder of the contest. Later on in the first half he also took out Bailey.

It was mainly due to the greenness of the substitute backfield array that Princeton got the last three of its total of four touchdowns. The pair that came in the last period resulted from Besley's punt and the same player being badly fooled on a forward pass. Besley, it might be mentioned, is having his first year of football, although he is a senior.

SPORTING
EDITOR'S COLUMN

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

Verily football is a gentleman's game. A referee changes a decision and immediately glorious victory is won under the impression it has achieved turns into bitter defeat. Yet one hears of no murder having been committed. Even criticism of this official has not been offered.

Imagine the same situation in baseball. Bill Brennan, for instance, after a satisfactory supper and a night's rest tosses off the covers, yawns and discovers that he made a mistake yesterday when the bases were full, the score tied and the count was three and two against "Doc" Silva. He finds out that he was not correct in calling a ball, forcing in the winning run for Birmingham.

Not wishing to lose time writing a letter he gets in touch with Joe Dunn, the Birmingham manager.

"Zat you, Joe," Bill asks, "This is Bill Brennan. After thinking the matter over, I believe 'Doc' struck out yesterday instead of being awarded a base on balls. That game will go down officially as a tie. I'm sorry the mistake was made, but I believe you will understand that I'm not a dumb fellow, and I don't think the milk was caused by a drunk dairyman. Guess you pulled something from under your pillow besides your false teeth this morning, didn't you? Don't think I ain't going to tell what I know about you talking with that one-legged guy with the cut across his face last night. I ain't blind. I ain't that near being a umpire."

That ends the fun between Mr. Brennan and Mr. Dunn.

Talks to Hersen.

The scene then shifts to a conversation between Mr. Brennan and Mr. Hersen, the manager of the Atlanta club. Mr. Brennan has reason to believe that he will receive a more cordial reception this time.

"Zat you, Dutch?" is his opening attack. "This is Bill Brennan. Listen, Dutch, I got mixed up yesterday, 'Doc' Auten was handing me too much razz from the press copy. I've decided that this morning, didn't you? I muffed that last ball on Silva. How's it suit you?"

"I guess it ain't about time you was coming across with some honesty," is Dutch's reply. "Why you big bunch of misplaced mule, with you behind the bat the Crackers couldn't lick your alma mater, the Home for the Blind. As umpire, pick you to be the most proficient robber that ever broke jail. 'Course I'll accept your new decision but it won't hurt for me to tell you one more time that if you was really honest what you ought to do is turn in your blue suit and go back to school for more treatment. Bill, you are awful."

Clem Not Fashionable.

Clem House is again at his post of duty at the Key municipal golf course after weeks of severe illness. Clem muffed a chance to be fashionable when he told this reporter that the trouble was not dengue fever. Mercer's football team, "Bo" McMillin and other figures in sportsworld needn't worry about competition from Clem. He's willing to leave dengue to the real experts.

The tournament season is supposed to come to an end sometimes, but Clem doesn't think so. Illness prevented him from giving stockade golfers a lot of trophies to shoot at during the summer, but he intends to keep them busy.

Here are three of the feminine golfers who took part in the first of the series of tournaments being staged by The Constitution. These ladies were defeated in yesterday's match play. At the left is Mrs. Lewis P. Neer, who was defeated in the morning round by Mrs. Dozier Lowndes, southern and city champion. In the center is Mrs. Howard Muse, who was beaten in the afternoon by Mrs. T. T. Williams after a brilliant struggle. On the right is Miss Jimmie Pattillo, who gave Mrs. Clarence Bradley a fine battle, although Miss Pattillo has been playing golf for only a short while. She is regarded as very promising material.

NOT TO SELL
N. Y. GIANTS

New York, October 25.—Unofficial published reports that Charles A. Stoneham is negotiating to sell his controlling interest in the New York Giants to Harry N. Hempstead, who owned the controlling interest prior to Stoneham's arrival in the business, in 1918, were denied Wednesday in a long statement issued by James Tierney, secretary of the club.

Tierney's statement said Stoneham had an offer some time ago but turned it down and there are no negotiations now pending. The controlling interest of 1,370 shares is held by Stoneham and Manager John J. McGraw, and another block of 70 shares is held by Francis X. McQuade, politician and local police magistrate.

It was McGraw who persuaded Stoneham to invest in the club which Stoneham did only on condition that McGraw should remain as manager. There have been no differences between Stoneham and McGraw, according to Tierney's story.

The Giants broke all previous records for attendance on the road in the 1922 season, even exceeding 1921, the greatest previous year, said the statement. The gross attendance exceeded all previous figures by 25,000.

Dangerous Pastime.

One of the city's rising young bookies informs this column that his idea of making books on English turf classics. He pointed out the fact that a 100 to 1 shot breezed to victory a few days ago. He'll probably get heart failure when he reads the accounts of the new market results in this edition. Re-Echo at 25 to 1 won. Poisoned Arrow place at 7 to 1. Hasty Match paid 50 to 1 for show.

Hamilton Changes.

Bill Hamilton sporting editor of the New Orleans Item for many years, has left that newspaper, but he is still sticking pretty close to sport. He has signed up an associate publisher of The Daily Sporting Bulletin, New Orleans, and will do most of the writing.

Thousand of readers will regret Bill leaving The Item, but they will continue to follow his famous column, "Ham's Sport Chat," in The Bulletin. Bill's new assignment means that The Bulletin, formerly confined to racing, dope, form, chats, etc., will invade all branches of sportsdom.

Jimmy Brewster Injured Again
And Hunt Suffers Wrenched Leg

John Staton Says That
Tech's Workout Wednesday Left Many Things to Be Desired.

IRISH LEAVE TODAY.

Notre Dame, Ind., October 25. (Special.)—The last scrimmage before the important intercollegiate contest with Georgia Tech at Atlanta was held on Carter field today and consisted in all probability of the varsity against Tech played by the freshmen. Crowley, Miller, Castner and Stuhl Dreher constituted the varsity backfield, with Regan and Voss at center, Brown and Flinn at guard, Cotton and Oberst at tackles and Mayl and McNulty at ends. Thirty-four men, with Coach Kierke and Student Manager Guinness, will leave South Bend Thursday morning for Atlanta. The list follows: Ends, Captain Carberry, McNulty, Collins, Vergera, Mayl, Hunsinger, tackles, Oberst, Cotton, Flinn, E. Miller and Stange; guards, Degee, Flinn, Kiser, Brown, Weibte and Harrington; centers, Harmon, Regan, Voss and Ward; halfbacks, Herman, Crowley, Don Miller, Connet, Kane, Layden; fullbacks, Castner, Livengood and Cerney.

BY JOHN STATON.

The goddess of ill fortune seems to hover dangerously close to the anatomy of Jimmy Brewster. It seems as if he will never be able to get into fine shape for any game. No sooner does he recover from one injury, when being—another hits him, and he is slowed up accordingly.

Yesterday afternoon during the afternoon tea party on Grant field Jimmy hurt his leg again. It was doing nicely after the Navy game, and went through that scrimmage fine. Jimmy was helped off the field yesterday by the managers. He was unable to walk. As yet it is not definitely known whether the foot is seriously hurt or not, but we all hope for the best. Alexander Hunt suffered a wrenched leg, but it will probably be all right after a few applications of hot towels.

The scrimmage yesterday left much to be desired in many respects. Both varsity teams were way off. The first varsity played pitifully against the Notre Dame formations, and the second varsity got pushed all over the field by the freshmen. The freshmen scored two or three touchdowns and missed things up generally.

It was planned for the first varsity to take a little offensive scrimmage, then spend the remainder of the afternoon on defense against the Notre Dame plays. But they were so ragged on offense and lacked drive on such an extent that they had the ball offensively most of the afternoon.

Tech Must Fight.

This gave them very little opportunity of seeing the Hocke system under fire. Kid Clay's men have a record of stuf which was not shown on the field. They never attempted a single forward pass yesterday, and Notre Dame had one of the most dangerous forward passing systems in the whole country. There is only one thing left to do, and that is to

VOL STATERS
HELP MERCER

When the Mercer Baptists face the strong Vanderbilt team in Nashville Saturday Coach Cody will do his best to convince his alma mater that his team has an abundance of the right stuff.

The Mercer squad has been in a crippled condition the whole season, and it is thought that in all probability the entire varsity squad will be able to make the trip to Vanderbilt.

In the recent Auburn-Mercer game which Auburn won by the overwhelming score of 50 to 7, seven of Mercer's regular players were left behind, unable to make the trip.

The playing of Dave Rice and "Skippy" Woolwine, who both hail from Nashville, will doubtless be the feature of the Vanderbilt-Mercer game.

Tennessee is well represented at Mercer. Dave Rice, fullback, attended Duncan and Woolwine is from Leabody. Other Tennessee boys on the Mercer varsity squad are "Kid" Miller of Columbia, from Columbia Military academy; "Red" Simmons of Fayetteville, from Morgan; Sidney Ellison, of Jellico, from Cumberland college, and McDonald, of Orlando, who is playing on the freshman team.

Lambert Smith, of Tennessee, was given the honor of being the best all-around athlete at Mercer last year, starting on the football, basketball and basketball teams. Sid Ellison and "Red" Simmons also starred on the basketball team.

It is thought that Mercer will be in much better condition when they play Vanderbilt than has at any other time during the whole season, and a much closer score is looked for than that of the Auburn and Georgia games.

THOMASVILLE SENDS CROWD TO GAME

Thomasville, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—Thomasville will send a large crowd to Moultrie Friday not only to attend the fair but to witness the big game of football scheduled between Thomasville High and Moultrie High, which is expected to be a fiercely fought one. This game is looked upon as a sort of struggle for the championship of this section of south Georgia, and the Thomasville boys are going with the determination to "do or die" in the attempt. Under Coach Rawson the local club has developed a great football spirit and his work has been wonderfully successful. Even though the boys do not win at Moultrie they expect to put up a game that will be well worth seeing, as that is the sort they have been playing this season.

Greatest Team in History.

St. Louis, Mo., October 25.—Nebraska university this season has the greatest team in the history of American football, in the opinion of Steve O'Rourke, coach at St. Louis university, who saw the Cornhuskers romp over Missouri university Saturday 48 to 0. "Nebraska is so good it could play Harvard Thursday, Yale Friday and Centre Saturday, and win all three games," he said.

BIG THREE AGREEMENT NOT SO DRASTIC
Intersectional Games Not Prohibited

New York, October 25.—The impression which appears to prevail in certain quarters that Harvard, Yale and Princeton are barred from further participation in intersectional football games by the new agreement is not apparently borne out by a careful reading of the clauses in the agreement which goes into effect on January 1.

Under the new plan it is specified that football training shall not begin either at the university or elsewhere until one week before the institution opens and that the scheduled number of games shall be reduced to a number consistent with the shortened season.

In the next paragraph it is stipulated that no post season contests for the purpose of settling sectional or other championships or involving long or expensive trips or extended absence from the university shall be permitted.

With the exception of the visit of the Harvard team to California in 1919 and the present week end journey of Princeton to Chicago, none of the "big three" has violated the new regulations within the last decade. Many college eleven from other sections have in turn invaded the gridirons at Princeton, New Haven and Cambridge during that period and there appears to be nothing in the new arrangement to prevent their coming in the future.

KING COLLEGE TEAM WANTS SEWANEE

Bristol, Tenn., October 25.—(Special.)—One of the greatest football sensations of the south Saturday was the 206 to 0 victory of the King college "Tornadoes" over the strong Lehigh college eleven. The victory revealed Kaysee as one of the greatest teams of the smaller southern colleges. It paved the way for a much stronger schedule next year and caused football enthusiasm here to approach the bursting point.

Had the first team stayed in the game and the full time been allowed it is thought the score would have reached the 300 mark. The varsity men were retired from the contest at the close of the second period and the time was cut short because of darkness. The first two quarters were of 15 minutes each, the third of 12 minutes and the last of six. This was by special agreement between the two coaches. The day was too hot for football and several players on both sides were winded from fast work when taken out.

SARAZEN HAS NARROW ESCAPE IN AUTO

New York, October 25.—Gene Sarazen, American open golf champion, narrowly escaped injury last night when he made an unsuccessful effort to avoid running down Luke Robinson, an old resident of White Plains. Sarazen ran his car onto the sidewalk and he was thrown from the vehicle, knocked down and suffered a fractured skull and several broken ribs. Sarazen was paroled by Coroner Fitzgerald after eyewitnesses had described the accident as unavoidable. The golfer was uninjured.

Mrs. Lowndes, Mrs. Bradley,
Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Latham,
Remaining in Tournament

Next Event for City's Feminine Golfers Will Be Started Wednesday Over Course
At East Lake—Close Matches.

BY MRS. CLARENCE BRADLEY.

The second day of play in The Constitution's golf tournament for the fair sex was played over the Druid Hills golf course yesterday morning.

One of the closest matches staged in a golf tournament recently was the match between Mrs. T. T. Williams and Mrs. Howard Muse.

Mrs. Williams was conceding Mrs. Muse 11 strokes and neither competitor was at any time more than 2 up.

Mrs. Muse was 1 up at the end of 16, both making a 6 on this hole. Mrs. Williams won the 17th hole, Mrs. Muse's second shot making the ditch. Mrs. Williams won an 18 with a 6 to Mrs. Muse's 8. Mrs. Williams winning by 1 up.

Mrs. Muse and Mrs. Williams played in the finals at the Anale Park Golf club in the sweepstakes tournament staged by the Atlanta Woman's Golf association the past summer. Mrs. Williams winning by 3 up and 1 to play, with the same number of strokes conceded yesterday.

Mrs. Lowndes Wins.

Mrs. Dozier Lowndes won her match from Mrs. Lois P. Neer, 5 up, 4 to go in the morning. In the afternoon Mrs. Lowndes played Mrs. Charles M. Sciple and won 3-2, conceding Mrs. Sciple 19 strokes. Mrs. Lowndes won the first hole. Mrs. Sciple won the second with her stroke, also the third. The fourth was won by Mrs. Lowndes, the fifth by Mrs. Sciple. The sixth was won by Mrs. Lowndes with a par 4. The seventh was won by Mrs. Sciple, making her 2 up. Mrs. Lowndes won the next two holes, squaring the match at the turn.

The next three holes were won by Mrs. Lowndes with three fives. The thirteenth was halved. On number 14 Mrs. Sciple drove into the creek and there both making a 5. Mrs. Sciple's hole. The sixteenth was halved, ending the match 3 up, 2 to go, in favor of Mrs. Lowndes.

On fifteen both drove short of the creek. Both went into the creek on their second and were on the green in three, both making a 5. Mrs. Sciple's hole. The sixteenth was halved, ending the match 3 up, 2 to go, in favor of Mrs. Lowndes.

Mrs. Sciple and Mrs. Lowndes played in from sixteen, and on seventeen Mrs. Lowndes holed out a niblick shot 40 yards from the green.

A Close Battle.

Mrs. T. H. Latham won from Mrs. Cyrus Strickler in a very close match, 3-2.

Mrs. Strickler had Mrs. Latham one down the turn. Ten and eleven were halved. Mrs. Latham won the twelfth, squaring the match.

Thirteen was halved and both were playing at top form; Mrs. Latham steadied and won the next two holes, giving her a 3 up and 2 to play.

Mrs. Bradley won from Miss Jimmie Pattillo 2 up and 1 to go in a very close match.

Miss Pattillo has been playing but a short time, and with practice should develop into a crack golfer. Her wood and masher shots were very good.

The second day of match play will begin at 9 o'clock this morning.

The pairings are as follows: Mrs. T. T. Williams plays Mrs. T. H. Latham. Mrs. Williams giving Mrs. Latham 11 strokes.

Mrs. Dozier Lowndes plays Mrs. C. Bradley. Mrs. Lowndes giving Mrs. Bradley 7 strokes.

The finals will be played Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

The next tournament to be given for feminine golfers by The Constitution will be given at the East Lake club. Qualifying round begins Wednesday morning, November 5, the finals to be played the following Saturday morning.

With the exception of the Princeton-Chicago series there has not been a home and home agreement in any of these intersectional games. Consequently there were no long trips, except the one to North Carolina for the other features mentioned in the agreement. It has been the visiting combinations on which such burdens, if any, fell.

Under the new plan it is specified that football training shall not begin either at the university or elsewhere until one week before the institution opens and that the scheduled number of games shall be reduced to a number consistent with the shortened season.

In the next paragraph it is stipulated that no post season contests for the purpose of settling sectional or other championships or involving long or expensive trips or extended absence from the university shall be permitted.

With the exception of the visit of the Harvard team to California in 1919 and the present week end journey of Princeton to Chicago, none of the "big three" has violated the new regulations within the last decade. # Mrs. Harvey Honor Guest at Tea

Mrs. Robert E. Harvey entertained very charmingly at tea, Wednesday afternoon, at her home on East Seventeenth street in Joy's compliment to her mother, Mrs. William Harvey, of Harrodsburg, Ky.

Pink chrysanthemums in silver baskets and vases decorated the lower floor of the house, while in the dining room the decorations were very unique and artistic. An exquisite lace covered the table, while the central decoration was a massive silver candelabra, holding pink burning tapers, encircled by four silver candlesticks also holding pink burning tapers. The candelabra was connected by graceful garlands of hot-house smilax and placed at intervals were silver platters of dainty French pastries and compotes of salted almonds and pink mints. A large oblong mirror, a beautiful old heirloom, which hung opposite the table, reflected the soft lights from the candles.

Tea was served from an old-fashioned drop-leaf table, where the tea service, in silver, was placed. Two silver candlesticks held tall pink tapers and a silver bowl was filled with chrysanthemums. Pouring tea was Mrs. Frank Mayson.

Assisting in entertaining were Miss Mary Harvey, and Mrs. H. F. West, Mrs. Fred Paxson, Mrs. Ben Wiley, Mrs. J. M. Little, Mrs. Sims Bray and John Spalding.

Mrs. Robert Harvey wore a gown of black georgette crepe, embellished in black velvet and trimmed with gold lace.

Six thousand feet of educational film, showing proper and improper handling of freight, was shown at the Astor hotel Wednesday evening for the benefit of the claim agents and other officials of the transportation lines of the southeast and local railroad employees and officers, who were invited to attend this session of the southeastern claim conference. Wednesday marked the closing of this conference, and it was announced that the annual meeting would take place in St. Augustine in January.

The educational film shown Wednesday was furnished by the Illinois Central, co-operating with the claim agents of this district in their campaign to reduce losses through damage to shipping. An interesting feature of the film was the section devoted to railroad development. The first steam locomotive ever built in the United States was pictured beside the Twentieth Century limited, and the first engine of the Illinois Central, 1834 model, was also shown.

Much enthusiasm concerning the railroad industry was evidenced by the officials attending, numbering close to fifty persons.

Study Class In Psychology

The outstanding features in the lesson for the psychology study class, which meets Friday afternoon at 8:30 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Francis Alexander, 362 Peachtree street, will be "The Law of Attraction," and "The Secret of Power."

The course of study has for its foundation the "Master Key" system of Charles Heanel, one of the standard works on the practical application of the truths of psychology.

The fourth lesson, "The Law of Attraction," will be repeated this week for the benefit of those who were unable to attend last week's session. Any one interested in this fine study will be most cordially welcome.

Miss Buchanan Is Honored

Mrs. Harry Barnitz was hostess at a very charming bridge-luncheon Wednesday at her home on Myrtle street, in compliment to Miss Lola Buchanan, a bride-elect.

The color scheme of pink and white was effectively carried out in the decorations. The rooms where the guests were received were beautifully decorated with fall flowers.

The score cards were old-fashioned girls dressed in pink and white. The guest prize was a perfume bottle and the prize for top score was a set of hand-painted knives. The consolation was a deck of cards.

The guests included Miss Lola Buchanan, Mrs. Allen Jernigan, Mrs. Helen Gamble, Mrs. Welsh, Miss Mary Frances Barnhart, Miss Ellen Raper, Mrs. Bert Owens and Miss Ethel Smith.

TEXAS DISTURBANCE AFFECTS WEATHER HERE

Down along the coast of Texas and elsewhere in the Lone Star state there is something going on which affects Atlanta. Thousands of Atlantans noticed the visible indications of this disturbance, but probably never dreamed of how far away it was, or that anything except right in Atlanta had caused it.

A little bit of rain was falling Tuesday in southwest Texas, and it resulted in thin clouds floating over Atlanta. Just what is going to happen down there, and what is going to happen in Atlanta, the weather men are not sure. To save Wednesday, but for a day or two at least, no rain is expected in Atlanta. Warmer weather is expected, but no forecast for more than one or two days was given out by C. F. von Herrmann, local meteorologist, Wednesday.

"We can't tell just yet what is going to happen in Texas, and as all our rain comes from disturbances down there, it is hard to calculate the developments for more than a few hours."

But it was pointed out by the weather man that things could develop mighty fast down there, so it was not safe to say whether we would have rain in the next few days. But nothing in the country would indicate the approach of cold weather. Stated Mr. von Herrmann, there is no cold weather in the northwest from which most of Atlanta's cold waves come, so it was predicted that no frost would fall here for at least another week.

SAYS COTTON CLOTHED ANCIENT EGYPTIANS

"Cotton was used by the Greeks and Egyptians 400 years before the Christian era," said George S. Harris, president of the Exposition Cotton Mills, in an address before the regular meeting of the Rotary club Tuesday at the Capital City club. Mr. Harris discussed the growth of the cotton industry and talks by John Brice, William Glenn and Russell Porter, the presence of Robert H. McDowell, a distinguished visitor from Louisville, Ky., were the principal features of the luncheon.

"Cotton has a more diversified utility than any other plant known," said Mr. Harris. "It has grown in India, the oldest cotton producing country in the world, for more than 30 centuries. Egyptian mummies have been found clothed in cotton cloth of a very fine texture."

The International Cotton exposition in 1881 in Atlanta had more to do with the development of cotton manufacture, perhaps, than any other one agency. Mr. Harris stated. He mentioned the names of the younger Atlantans who organized the exposition, Governor Alfred H. Colquitt, James W. English, then mayor of Atlanta, Samuel H. Tamm, Jr., Kimball, Robert J. Lowry, Ryan P. Howell, J. M. High and Livingston Mills.

Mrs. Berkley Is Honored

Mrs. Howard Berkley, of Harrisburg, Pa., was the central figure at a bridge-luncheon given Wednesday by Mrs. Frank North and Mrs. Thomas Monroe at the home of the latter on Rivers road. Yellow and white chrysanthemums decorated the home, and the lace-covered luncheon table had in the center a silver basket filled with yellow and white chrysanthemums. The favors and place cards were suggestive of Halloween.

The prize for top score was a hand-painted perfume bottle, and the consolation was a candy box. The honor guest was given a piece of lingerie.

The guests included Mrs. Berkley, Mrs. John Baldwin, Jr., Mrs. J. R. Dillon, Mrs. Tom Allen, Mrs. William Rose, Mrs. Roy Morrison, Mrs. Frank North and Mrs. Monroe.

Highland School To Give Party

Highland school will give a Halloween party on Friday afternoon, October 27, at 3 o'clock. All mothers and friends are invited to come with their children. There will be candy to pull, ice cream, decorated pumpkins, boxes of pumpkins, with witches and their tents and many other attractions which will make a merry occasion.

Drama League Study Class

The Drama League Study class will meet Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock at Edison hall, on Peachtree street. Mrs. Emma Garrett Boyd will read one of the first important Russian plays, "The Inspector-General," of Nicholas Gogol, a lusty farce dealing vigorously with governmental corruption and the evils of bureaucracy and bribery. This farce is so funny that it is said the printers who first set it up rolled off their chairs with laughter.

The study class is open to all members of the drama league without additional fee.

Mrs. Ragsdale Gives Bridge-Tea

Mrs. Clifford Ragsdale was hostess at a bridge-tee, Wednesday afternoon, at the East Lake Country club, in a lovely compliment to her guest, Miss Mary Hill, of Kansas City, and Mrs. Berrien Upshaw, a recent bride.

The house was effectively decorated with baskets of chrysanthemums.

The top score prize was a French basket of dahlias and the consolation was a beautiful embroidered Madeira guest towel.

The guests included twenty-six friends of Mrs. Ragsdale.

Mrs. Camp Honors Miss Woodridge

Mrs. W. M. Camp entertained very delightfully at her home on the Prado, Wednesday afternoon, when she honored Miss Mary Woodridge, a feteed bride-elect, at an elaborate reception.

The guests were received in the sun room of the house which was beautifully decorated in the color scheme of Du Barry pink and blue.

The color scheme of pink and white was also carried out in the dining room. The tea table had as a beautiful centerpiece, a basket filled with pink chrysanthemums. Surrounding this were Du Barry pink and blue candlesticks holding pink and white tapers.

Receiving with Mrs. Camp were Miss Mary Woodridge, the honor guest, and her mother, Mrs. Campbell Woodridge.

Mrs. Camp wore a handsome gown of black velvet and grey braid, elaborately trimmed with crystals.

Miss Woodridge's becoming gown was of gold and rose brocade, with a train of gold brocade hanging at one side.

Mrs. Woodridge wore a stylish model of mauve crepe, beaded in mauve crystals.

Eighty-five guests called during the afternoon.

WASH THE KIDNEYS IF THEY BOTHER YOU

Take a Glass of Salts If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

Flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much meat and rich food may form uric acid, which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you suffer with dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the stomach, sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste, get four chances of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink.—(adv.)

- Each person may participate only as one contestant, and only in his or her own name. Each participant may submit as many as six complete sets of title answers (from one to three answers for each of the sixty pictures in this set). Each set of answers will be judged on its own merits. A duplicate list of the selections submitted should be retained by the contestant for self-checking purposes.

- The fifteen awards in the Pastime will be made to the fifteen highest ranking answers on the basis of having achieved the most appropriate or "best" selections of quotations. If there is an equality between two or more answers a decision will be made by the judges between the tying answers according to superiority in the following requirements: (a) The least number of incorrect selections (the titles which are not "best"); (b) The relative position of the contestant's "best" answer—whether first, second or third choice. In the event of an ultimate tie, each tying contestant will receive an equal prize.
- Use exactly the same form and spelling of quotations in your selection as you find listed in the Familiar Quotations Pastime Catalogue.
- Any contestant may have his friends assist him in selecting titles for the pictures. However, only one title will be awarded to any one household; nor will prizes be awarded to more than one of any group outside the family, who have worked together. The judges reserve the right to discard any set of quotations not complying with the rules and where unfairness is obvious.

Addresses on Education Feature U. D. C. Meeting

BY LOUISE DOOLY.

Addresses on why an organization of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, which deals with issues that are dead? Why such an organization, when there is social disruption to be dealt with everywhere; forces of destruction that need the patriotic women of the south to create sentiment against them?

Mrs. Walter Grace, of Macon, repeated the question at the state convention of the Daughters, now holding in Decatur, as one that is sometimes asked by the casuals who do not understand.

In part Mrs. Grace answered herself. It is the object of the order to keep alive the spirit that can best fight these things; to establish and maintain public opinion for honor and loyalty and love of country, and thus offset and put down self-seeking and destructive agitation in the conduct of public affairs.

The reason for the being of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was further exemplified yesterday as their convention program progressed, in the character of the speakers, which has education for its motto and schooling for the youth of the south through scholarships; preservation and extension of the truths of southern history, personal care of the women and veterans of the sixties, and establishment of world war records as its program.

All of these were exemplified in the annual report of the president, Mrs. Frank P. Harrell, of Americus, which was an illuminating feature of the morning session.

"It must be conceded," said Mrs. Harrell, "that no greater honor can be done the heroes of the sixties than to provide education for their children and their children's children, for education is the only fortification that can not be reduced."

The securing of free scholarships for needy boys and girls is one of the most commendable phases of our educational work.

Our state chairman for gift scholarships, Mrs. Julian Lane, of Statesboro, has served the division with such zeal that we now have recorded 200 scholarships valued at $25,000, also 60 prizes and medals valued at $300. Contributions to other educational work $5,000, making a total of $30,000 for education.

The completion of the $50,000 hero educational fund—a memorial to the men from Dixie who served their re-united country in 1917-19—makes us better prepared than ever to continue our service for the education of the children of Confederate veterans."

Mrs. Harrell's report showed that the Daughters are also contributing to the world war memorial fund, the establishment of the Alexander Stephens Memorial school, the Helen Plan, educational fund, which is educating six girls; has an interest of large contributions in the past to Francis Bartow Memorial school at Eden Gap, and maintain a scholarship at Peabody normal in Nashville.

Mrs. Harrell stressed the work being done through the division's five point star of service, embracing extension of membership (it is now nearly sixteen thousand) care of Confederate women and veterans, education, and war records, general welfare of the division.

She stressed the importance and growth of the organizations of Children of the Confederacy as the workers who are to carry on.

"The compilation of the records," she said, "of our southern soldiers who fought in the world war is but the continuance and perpetuation of one in which we take intense pride. The 'Alice Mitchell Walker' loving cup has been offered to the chapter sewing in the largest number of records, in order that there might be an added incentive for this work."

Mrs. Lee Trammell, of Madison, is state chairman for this department. She has received 400 records this year.

The Jefferson Davis highway, which is planned to connect the capitals of the south, and from Mobile follow the old Spanish trail to the Golden Gate, she pointed out as one of the most interesting propositions calling for the division's interest in Confederate memorials as well as good roads. The Stone Mountain memorial on which work has begun, she pointed out as the most tremendous prospect.

Miss Boynton Entertains Debutantes at Driving Club

Speakers to Debutantes.

Mrs. William Hill spoke to the debutantes about a charity work and asked for their help and co-operation.

Mrs. Edmund M. Townsend, of the national Y. W. C. A., who is in Atlanta now for the national conference of the Y. W. C. A., spoke to the club at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Townsend is Y. W. C. A. chairman of the post for the continuation of war work, and her talk was both interesting and stimulating.

Hart-Equen Wedding Is Beautiful Church Event

A beautiful wedding of Wednesday evening was that of Miss Ann Corneille Hart and Dr. Murdock Sykes Equen, which was solemnized at All Saints Episcopal church at 8 o'clock in the presence of a large assemblage of friends and relatives. Rev. W. W. Memminger, pastor, performed the ceremony.

The elaborate decorations of the church were formed of stately palms and foliage plants as a background for tall white pedestal baskets of Easter lilies and cathedral candles burning in candelabras. Baskets of white chrysanthemums were placed among the greenery on the altar and at intervals in the church.

Preceding the ceremony a program of appropriate wedding music was rendered by the organist, William Arnold.

The bridesmaids, including Misses Alice Orme, Margaret Morgan, Dorothy Haverty, Frances Powell and Sarah Sibley and Mary Byrd Tate, of Marietta, cousins of the bride, entered in pairs and wore beautiful gowns fashioned alike of gold chiffon veiling gold metal cloth. The circular skirts reflected the uneven hemline and the only trimmings were rolled girdles of orchid chiffon and Chinese blue chiffon, which fell gracefully on one side to form the trains. The waists were made of gold lace and chiffon and reflected the bateau neck, formed without sleeves. They carried arm-bouquets of gold chrysanthemums showered with smaller chrysanthemum buds.

Mrs. Humphrey Wagar, as matron of honor, wore an exquisite model of orchid metal cloth with overdraperies of orchid chiffon. The waist was fashioned with chiffon and silver lace, forming the bateau neck and the skirt was beautifully draped, adorned with designs embroidered in silver and French flowers. A girdle of silver and orchid chiffon was fastened on one side and formed the train and her bouquet was of orchid chrysanthemums.

Miss Dolly Hart was her sister's maid of honor and was gowned in gold lace over gold metal cloth. The lace was embroidered in a large design of crystals and beads and the girdle of embroidered chiffon, which was fastened at one side, formed the train. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white chrysanthemums showered with smaller chrysanthemums.

Miss Amelia LeGrande Freeman, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid and wore a lovely hand-made dress of yellow chiffon trimmed with French flowers. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of small yellow chrysanthemums.

The little flower girls, Misses Elkin Goddard and Emily Evans, wore dainty frocks of pale yellow chiffon with lace trimmings and embroidered in flowers. They carried small yellow baskets filled with chrysanthemums.

John Burke acted as best man and the groomsmen were Charles Wilkes, Dr. L. W. Grove, Lowry Nicolson, Stewart Coleman, Dr. Wilson Ratliff and John J. Wilkins, Jr., of Athens, Ga., cousin of the bride.

The following were ushers: Dr. Dunbar Roy, ex-Governor John H. Slaton, Robert C. Alston and John L. Tye.

Lovely Bride.

The lovely bride entered with her cousin, Horton Mathewson, by whom she was given in marriage. She was radiant in her wedding dress of chintilly lace veiling white duchess satin. The waist was very plain and fashioned with pearls and the skirt, which was draped, was caught on one side with a handsome fringed ornament of pearls and crystals. The tulle veil was caught to her hair with a coronet of lace edged with pearls and orange blossoms and the court train, which hung from the shoulders, was hand-bombed with embroidery in pearls and crystals. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and valley lilies.

Reception at Home.

An informal reception for the bridal party, out-of-town guests and immediate families, followed the ceremony, at the home of the bride on Peachtree.

The home was effectively decorated with masses of palms, foliage plants, smilax and pedestal baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums. The table in the dining room was overlaid with a Madeira cloth and a three-tier bride's cake, embossed in pink and white roses graced the center. Unshaded tapers in silver candlesticks and silver compotes filled with mints and honeys were the other table appointments.

Mrs. John Collier Hart, mother of the bride, wore a handsome gown of black lace over satin, fashioned with a train of lace and chiffon.

Mrs. E. P. Wilkinson, mother of the groom, wore black chiffon velvet.

Mrs. J. O. Mathewson was gowned in orchid metal cloth with overdraperies of black lace.

Miss Augusta Equen, of Columbus, Miss, sister of the groom, wore blue sequin robe with a chiffon train.

Prominent Families.

The bride is the older daughter of Mrs. John Collier Hart and the late Judge Hart, was graduated from the Washington seminary, where she was a member of the O. B. X., and later attended Agnes Scott college, from which she was graduated in 1921, receiving her A. B. degree with Latin major. She was a popular member of the Delta Phi sorority. During the period of the war she was a member of the Red Cross and Cantonee.

She is a member of the junior league and was elected last year as secretary of the Agnes Scott Alumnae club.

The charming young bride is descended from the Sibleys, Hortons, Wilkines and other aristocratic southern families. She is a sister of Hal Hart and George Hart, of Miami, Fla., and John Hart, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Miss Dolly Hart, of Atlanta—a niece of Mrs. J. O. Mathewson, of Atlanta; Mrs. J. J. ## Music Federation Closes Executive Session at Macon

Macon, Ga., October 25.—(Special)

On one of the most delightful incidents of the two-day session of the executive board of the Georgia Federation of Music clubs, whose members are the guests of the Hyecian Music club of Macon, was the luncheon at the Danapay hotel today, given in honor of the board by Mrs. T. H. Lane, president of the hostess club.

The luncheon was presided over by Mrs. Lane, who addressed the officers of the state federation present. Responses were made in kind by Mrs. Frederick Vaisiere, of Rome, staff president; Mrs. W. P. Bailey, of Savannah, first vice president; Mrs. J. Durrant, of Cordele, third vice president; Miss Evelyn Jackson, of Atlanta, director of junior work; Miss Gertrude Barnett, of Washington, Ga., treasurer.

The large round table was centered with a great black top swung on a tripod of black sticks, surrounded by a tiny watch, the curling flames beneath it made from red crepe paper. Tiny pots suspended from tripods marked each guest's place.

Mrs. Lane referred to the big central pot as the Georgia Federation of Music clubs, and the smaller ones as each district's individual work, and both were to be kept boiling. Increase came arising from the large pot indicated that the work of the state federation was merly "boiling."

Luncheon was served in four courses and during the luncheon the keynote of the board meeting was struck by Mrs. Durrant, of Cordele, who reminded the board members that the work of the year should be the stimulation of appreciation in their respective communities, and throughout the state, and the standardizing of music in the public schools.

After the luncheon business was resumed. Mrs. Lane's luncheon guests included Mrs. Durrant, Mrs. W. P. Bailey, Mrs. J. T. Durrant, Mrs. G. A. Heide, Mrs. Gertrude Barnett, Mrs. Hugh Couch, of College Park; Miss Evelyn Jackson, Mrs. C. H. Jones, Mrs. J. G. Coleman, of Savannah; Mrs. Lincoln McConnell, Mrs. Cecil Neill, of Columbus; Mrs. J. S. Sneed, of Valdosta; Mrs. Jack Penn, of Macon; Mrs. Elizabeth M. Fendig.

The top score prize was a bridge novelty and the consolation was a deck of cards. The guest prize was a piece of linen.

EDUCATION STRESSED AT U. D. C. MEETING

order the furniture and walls of rooms in Winnie Davis hall bearing the names of certain chapters? This is, of course, a question of policy, and to be decided upon by the chapters. The question has arisen in my mind from observing some rooms so well kept up as to clean walls, painted furniture, good springs and mattresses and other rooms, with such melancholy walls, dilapidated furniture and bed springs upon which only a jack-knife could repose in comfort.

A final recommendation was that the name of the subcommittee, "Better Moving Pictures" in order not to confuse the U. D. C. with that of the newer organization bearing the name, and on motion by Mrs. Otley, this change was voted by the convention.

"The standing legislative work for the censorship of moving pictures," said Mrs. Otley, "of which Mrs. A. F. Holt has special charge, has made no progress during the past year owing to the press of other business in the general assembly."

"Two bills were put in by request of the 'folks back home' and many representatives state that better pictures are the greatest interest of their constituents. Good pictures have been encouraged in many ways."

The latest report of the credentials committee was 211, with delegates still registering.

The report by Miss Alice Baxter, chairman of the world war memorial fund, which showed that the fund was $800 short of the $2,000 needed as first loan for the education of a Georgia boy, who must be a lineal descendant of a Confederate veteran, was followed by the suggestion from Mrs. R. A. Grady, Savannah, that in tribute to Mrs. Harrold's last year as state president and to Miss Baxter, should there not be established some uniform plan for the upkeep of this life next year.

Mrs. Lee Trammell, of Madison, presented to the fund the $25 awarded her by the general body as prize to Georgia, the state sending in the largest number of war records at the last national convention.

Mrs. E. R. Jordan, of Ellaville, reporting on the Georgia room in the Confederate museum at Richmond, stated that $2,002 has been given by the Georgia Daughters, and $807 is still needed for the work. The Virginia Daughters in the meantime are caring for Georgia's relics. Impassioned appeals were made by Miss Mildred Rutherford and Mrs. Walter D. Felt that that work should no longer lie. On motion of Mrs. Howard H. McCall the roll of chapters was called for pledges and $357 was raised at once by chapter and individual.

Mrs. H. H. McCall, reporting on the sale of the book, "Southern Women in War Times," of which the national body had allotted Georgia two hundred to dispose of, stated that all but five had been sold. These were immediately taken by members present, and the purchase price was voted to the completion of the Georgia room in the Confederate museum at Richmond.

Mrs. T. T. Stevens reported on the division's foreign libraries, in Ottawa, Paris and London, and at her request the division will send to these libraries also subscriptions to the Confederate Veteran.

Mrs. S. G. Long, of Sanderville, reported that the division's allotted contribution to the hero education fund was now completed.

Miss Mildred Rutherford, state historian, in introducing Miss Lillie Martin, of Hawkinsville, assistant historian, to read the report prepared in typically gentle but strong terms those chapters which have not reported their historical work, constitution, thus holding back the showing Georgia ought to

Who's Who in the Story

Phyllis Gay, a movie queen who has made a million for every scene, is trying to forget her days as a matinee star. Deborah, a little sewing girl, who told us about her life in the shop of Madame Marie. One night Deb delivers a scene to Miss Gay's apartment on Riverside drive and encounters a crowd of movie folks in a Bohemian studio party. Bertha Rivers, the pages agent, is the life of the party.

Phyllis, a stout and overbearing director, is introduced as Mrs. Deborah Denarest. Larry Denarest, the leading man, drives Deb home. Larry assumes a strange sort of interest and sympathy for Deb and in adopting an invisible husband, complications ensue for Deborah, particularly since she decides to change her name from Lynch to Denarest.

Johnnie, a girl-also an extra, and the "Jazz" of the studio. Fritz, the director, is non-plussed when Deb introduces herself as Mrs. Deborah Denarest. Larry denies that she is any relation, but gossip follows when he takes Deb to dinner. Deborah is happy to be promoted to Phyllis, but secretly is in love with Larry.

Deb is disgusted with the shop, and the life of Katie, the manager. "Gosh, I'd hate to be a human clothes-horse!" Johnnie comes to tell her about the new part.

INSTALLMENT NO. 23. Kisses and Conscience. During Johnnie's dissertation upon the merits of right thinking Deborah was brushing out her long black hair, and smiling happily in the mirror.

"I'll have to wear it long, I suppose. A mountain girl! And bare feet, Johnnie!"

"That's lucky you have two of 'em, ain't it? But what's the difference! The way I figure it is—if I had only one leg, there'd probably be a scenario needing a cripple, and I'd be just lucky enough to get the part!"

"You are an optimist!" Deb giggled. "Well, you know the saying, 'nothing is half as bad as it would be, if it were twice as bad.'"

The telephone rang to interrupt the badinage, and this time Deb was not disappointed in her summons. None other than Larry it was to impart the official information that Deb was to report at the studio, with a bag packed for camping in the mountains and a rough old dress, a hair-brain, and an old-fashioned happy too.

"I'm so happy I could die!" Deb breathed over the telephone. "Please don't do that," Larry laughed. "What's the matter? Too much about this old chit made him feel more human, more real, than anything that had touched his life since he entered the gum to film?"

"What are you doing tonight?" Deb nearly keeled over with joy as she tried to breathe carefully. "Not much—a little picking is all."

"Like a ride?"

"It was moonlight again, and Larry again was wondering why this pair of brown eyes was disturbing him more than he could understand. It was just the simplicity of the girl—the breath of innocence after the dead-stench of the studio."

"Do you know, it's like coming up out of a cellar to talk to you, little girl!" he sighed, as they swept along Riverside drive.

"You mean you like being with me?" "I do," he said rather solemnly. "And I think of you when I'm not with you, and that's what I can't understand."

"You don't?" Deb breathed blissfully. "You don't understand it? Why—it's love! I knew it the first time I met you—the first night we drove down the river! I shall never forget it!"

She was leaning across the seat and gazing into his face. Larry almost ran the car over the embankment!

"Here!" he cried, bringing the car to a stop around the corner. "Here, what are you trying to do? Vamp me?"

Deb was overcome with blushes, but she was nothing if not frank. "You said you liked being with me all the time. That's the way I feel about you. The only difference is, I knew it before you did—I had a strange dream about a night when Larry floundered painfully. He hadn't meant anything like this. He had meant to be kind—a good friend! But Deborah had seized his hand with youthful fervor, and was pressing it to her hot cheek."

"I loved you long before I met you—when I used to see you in the movies."

Larry pulled himself together violently. This was dreadful! "See here, pumpkin! You're just a baby. You oughtn't to talk like this! Don't you know a girl—a little girl like you—ought to be a good girl?"

"Oh I know—everyone preaches!" Deborah wept. "But when you feel like I do you can't keep it in, can you? Is it wrong for me to love you? I wouldn't have told you, if you hadn't."

"Haden't what?—come now, tell me," Larry soothed. The actor took the cue and his manner changed quickly from the careless boy to the man of the world. "I can't have you in my picture if you're going to be silly. I thought you were a sweet little kid, wanted a friend to cheer me up."

you up—I certainly never intended to start anything like this! Lots of girls feel that way about movie actors, but if they could see us with a shave and smoking a big, ugly pipe as I do, they might change. You want me to change—you don't want me to—? Deb wept the sentence incompletely.

"Of course not! Another word about this, and you'll have to get out of my show. I'm not what you think I am, and when you get better acquainted with me you'll understand."

"Phyllis Gay is the one," Deb pouted. "You like to kiss her—I might have known it. No wonder she wanted to send me away and not see you any more."

Larry looked down into the ridiculous baby face sympathetically. He could understand the symptoms; but Deb would get over it! That was not what alarmed him so much as the thought that he couldn't bear to order her out of the picture.

He didn't like the idea of not seeing her again, not looking into those strange eyes and wondering why they held him!

She was so different, so absolutely out of his sphere. If she had been a little chorus girl or something—well, he might have kissed her anyway. Her assemblage like most men was not untempting. But Larry was not a cad.

He drove her home quickly, more to evade himself than her. "You'll forget all about this tomorrow," he predicted, but as he drove away alone, he missed the warmth of her. It was wonderful to have someone love you like that. Blindly, dumbly? Larry was quite sure he didn't even understand what it meant. Here was a virgin devotion, and yet—

Larry wished that she hadn't put his hand to her cheek that way. (Copyrighted 1922 for The Constitution.)

The merchant without a set of books, recording his daily transactions, is in danger very much like that of a rudderless ship at sea.

He may get safely through the business shoals around him, but the chances are against it. It is practically impossible for him to know his business status.

There are times when he must know, if he wants to play safe. His books, properly kept, are the only thing that can tell him. We will be glad to advise you about it.

AGED MAN SUICIDES WHILE PUCK LAUGHS

New York, October 25.—Puck, the court jester, a laughing cynic in stone which scoffs at human vanity passing in endless streams along Lafayette street, looked upon the figure of a man dangling from a flag halyard—and grinned.

The police cut him down. He was a man about 60 without a dime in his pockets and his ragged clothes. Somehow he had gained the roof of the building across from the old Puck building where the famous old humorist weekly used to be published and had hanged himself from the flagmast. On a scroll of stone beneath the figure of Puck in the cornice are the words "What fools these mortals be."

CANADIAN SCHOONER WINS SECOND RACE

Gloucester, Mass., October 25.—Bluenose, Canada's holder of the North Atlantic fishing fleet championship, won the second race of the international series with the American challenger, Henry Ford, Wednesday in one of the most exciting sailing races ever seen here.

Each vessel now has a race to her credit and another contest will be necessary to decide possession of the trophy.

The Bluenose led the Ford at the finish by 7 minutes, 28 seconds. The unofficial finish time for the Bluenose was 4:07:36. The Ford crossed at 5:05:04 in a smother of spume.

It was a battle of sturdy fishermen in a wind that freshened from a breeze of 10 knots to half a gale. The Ford led across the starting line and had a lead for a short while on the first leg. After that the big Canadian schooner pulled away and held first place until she went over the finish.

The Bluenose's fisherman's stayail was carried away in the last mile of the race, but the defender had enough lead on the Ford to carry her over the line first.

After rounding the first mark the Bluenose pulled away until she had a lead of some 400 yards at the second. On the run to the third mark the Ford gained somewhat, but not enough to endanger the Bluenose's chances, on the dash to the fourth mark the Ford continued to gain for five miles, when the Bluenose, plunging along in half a gale with her lee sails awash and her rigging straining, pulled away, and turned the fourth mark for the five-mile run home, half a mile ahead of the Ford.

The third race of the series is scheduled for Thursday.

Says Faith Healers Hurt Orthodox Church

New York, October 25.—Faith healers are taking members away from the Orthodox church, and putting the latter on the defensive, declared H. H. Waters of Patchogue in a spirited discussion of healing before the Long Island Baptist ministers union.

A dozen ministers participated. Bibles were freely quoted, historic examples cited and nobody's mind changed.

Dr. Waters stated that after the Rosworth healers finished a campaign in Toronto, newspapers were unable to find a single "miracle" that stuck.

"The modern development of this so-called healing movement is putting the churches on the defensive," he said. "Healers, so-called, are crowding up all over this country and Canada and are attacking the ministers, claiming we are preaching only one half of the Gospel. When you analyze their tactics you find they invoke prayer but not healing."
